World in Brief

DAME EVANS DEAD — Dame Edith Evans, the acknowledged first lady of the British Stage, died at her country home Thursday at the age of 88. A star of numerous plays, she refused to make movies until she was 61, and then made a whole new career of them. She gave a one-woman stage show at the age of 85.

Ford Calls For Elevating Campaign

President Ford said that since Watergate Special Prosecutor Charles Ruff Thursday reported he did not violate any laws in the use of campaign funds during his congressional elections, he and Jimmy Carter can now "elevate the presidential campaign" by discussing issues.

Carter said he had "no reason to dispute" the prosecutor's findings. But he said he wouldn't apologize for his earlier statements demanding that Ford "tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth about his personal finances."

Republican Sen. Robert Dole and Sen. Walter Mondale, his Democratic opponent, will confront each other tonight in the campaign's vice presidential debate in Houston. It will be nationally televised, starting at 9:30 p.m. EDT.

Swine Flu Program Gets Back on Track

All the states—except Wisconsin, Michigan and Maine— which banned swine flu shots after three elderly persons died in Pittsburgh hours after receiving inoculations, continued the immunization program today.

Dr. Theodore Cooper, assistant secretary for Health, Education and Welfare, in Washington, Thursday cleared the vaccine of any responsibility in the deaths of 14 persons, including the initial Pittsburgh trio.

A-Bomb Show Creates Furor

HARLINGEN, Tex. (UPI) — The Confederate Air Force, an organization that collects and flies World War II aircraft, sponsored a flyover at an air show by retired Air Force Gen. Paul Tibbets, commander of the plane that dropped the Abomb on Hiroshima in 1945. It was a reenactment of the bombing and the Japanese government protested it to the U.S. Embassy in Tokyo.

CAF spokesman Col. Glenn Bercot said Thursday it was merely another simulation of World War II air battles and not meant to offend anyone. He stopped short of offering any apology to the Japanese for the performance. However, he said the CAF would explain, in response to Japan's protest.

Nobel Peace Prize Not Given This Year

OSLO, Norway (UPI) — The 1976 Nobel Peace Prize will not be awarded this year, the Nobel Committee of the Norwegian Parliament announced today in a two-sentence statement.

The five-member committee gave no reason for its decision.

"The Norwegian Storting's (parliament's) Nobel Committee has decided not to award the peace prize this year," the statement said. "The prize money will be reserved for 1977."

According to rules of the Norwegian Nobel Institute, two peace prizes could be awarded next year. If the committee decides to withhold the honor, the $150,000 prize money will go back to the Nobel Foundation.

Of the 30 times the peace prize has been reserved since it was first awarded in 1901, it was withheld 19 times—most recently in 1972.

County Legislators Reject Two Kramer Requests

New Welfare Funds Denied

By CHAZY DOWALIBY
Freeman Staff

KINGSTON — The Ulster County Legislature last night voted overwhelmingly to refuse to spend any extra money for welfare programs this year.

The lawmakers denied two requests from Social Services Commissioner Bernhardt Kramer for the sale of $343,750 in notes to cover anticipated Medicaid and Aid to Dependent Children(ADC) porgram costs for November and December.

Kramer anticipated his current budget funds will run out sometime around mid-November. At that time the state will probably take the county to court for non-payment of reuired programs.

Medeciad and ADC are funded 50 per cent by the federal government 25 per cent by the state and 25 per cent by the county.

The two legislators who cast dissenting votes were social services committee chairman Ernest Gardner,R-Dist. 5 who said that he was a "law-maker not a law-breaker" and could not in conscience vote in favor of the illegal resolution and George Barthel D-Dist.1, who voiced his concern for patients in nursing homes who might face a cut-off of care if Medicaid monies stopped flowing.

Legislator James Gilpatric, D-Dist.4 was absent from the meeting.

Kramer explained that there would be no immediate repercussions from Thursday's vote since the state will not take action until services are actually withheld.

"We'll just go right along as usual until October 31...until we know how much money is left in those funds' " he said.

Although failure of the county to provide its share of the welfare money should mean the shut down of medical and ADC programs, Kramer feels that the state will probably be ordered by the courts to pay the complete costs of the programs until resolution of the case, so that no actual hardship would be incurred by recipients.

After similar actions by Erie and Dutchess counties, the state has picked up the tab, continuing to fund the programs until such time as the courts order those counties to pay back the withheld funds and continue their programs.

The county legislature also recorded its unanimous support last night for Erie County's refusal to comply with required state programs.

In related action the group approved a number of fund transfers including $175,000 from various line items on the budget into home relief. Kramer said earlier in the day that the request for additional money for other programs was in no way related to home relief and that this transfer would probably cover his costs for the county-funded program.

During the afternoon session, the legislature listened to a nurse from the County Infirmary explain the need for faster replacement of staff there and in other health-related facilities. The legislature later voted to allow a special exemption from restrictive hiring pr actices passed last March as part of its austerity program.

Ms. Barabra Huth told the legislators that the health and welfare of patients was being threatened by the long lead time between resignation or firing of staff members and the re-appointment of replacements by legislative vote.

From now on, requests for replacements for those two programs will go through only one appropriate committee before being voted on. Kramer supported the measure, which passed by a 19 to 13 vote.

Gardner commented at one point that the county's austerity porgram had saved some $41,000 in social service salaries through the month of August by not replacing lost personnel in that department.

Also approved unanimously was a resolution authorizing the settlement of claims against New York City for county plowing and sanding of roads around City ownedreservoirs.

The County attorney was empowered to accept an offer f:om the city for $105,049, plus allowable nterest for work done between 1970 ar d 1976 which will close the claim.

Two requests for program money from the county Youth Bureau were sent back to committee for further investigation. $19,250 for expansion of the Kingston Indians Drum and Bugle Corps and $4,806 for Planned Parenthood sex education for 12 to 21 year old olds in the county were both turned back for more study after some debate.

The legislature did approve a Youth Bureau request for permission to apply for participation in the federal Youth Conservation Corps program which will provide 20 to 30 jobs for yeenagers next summer.

In personnel action the 32 lawmakers approved nine replacement positions in the Infirmary and one in the social services administration with a $2,999 financial impact; hired a cashier examiner for the county clerk's office at a salary of $7,155; promoted two persons and hired one in the Surrogates court; and refused to allow a one year educational leave without pay to a probation officer who wished to do graduate work beginning in January.

Withdrawn without explanation was a resolution which would have allowed

Designed for Chronically-Ill

Special Vaccine For Hi Risk Jrs.

KINGSTON — Another type of swine flu vaccine for children in "high risk" illness categories will be available next week at the county's free innoculation clinics, along with the two other adult doses.

Dr. Bartholemew Dutto, county Public Health commissioner said this morning that a "split vaccine for children 3 to 18 who suffer from lung or heart ailments or other chronic diseases has been made available to clinic innoculation."

The vaccine will be adminsitered in two doses, one next week and another special repeat clinic a month from now.

Adult vaccines for both healthy 18 to 60 year olds and those persons over 60 or in high risk categories because of chronic illness will also be administered on schedule.

Dutto reassured county residents that he feels the vaccines are safe, and would not be responsible for any adverse reactions in those receiving the shots.

The amount of vaccine available to the county is less than Dutto had requested from the state, but he feels that only between 40 and 60 per cent of the population will participate in the program, anyway, so that no shortages will occur.

There will be 10 free swine flu vaccine clinics set up around the county next week. The first is scheduled for Monday between 8 a.m. and 7 p.m. and the New York State Armory , Manor Avenue, Kingston.

Further information on the dates and locations of clinics may be obtained from the county Health Department in Kingston.

Resolution Defeated by 4-3 Vote

Board Stalls Again On H.S. Renovations

KINGSTON— The Kingston Board of Education failed again Thursday to take the first step in bringing the High School up to State Health and Safety standards.

A resolution calling for the Board to start accepting bids and plans on the needed renovations was defeated by a 4-3 vote and sent back to committee for further consideration.

The resolution was presented by Building Committee Chairman Joseph Feraca, Jr. at a special Board meeting. With two of the Board's nine members absent, the measure did not gain the votes needed for passage.

Board President Fred Hofbauer said that the $7.5 million renovation plan submitted last month by Halverson-McCullough Associates is still being considered, but additional plans are being requested before a final decision is made.

The defeat of the measure centered around the board's failure to agree on the wording of the resolution.

Board member Len Cane sought to include an amendment which said that the submission of plans would came at no cost to the district. Board member Micheal Bohan questioned whether or not that could be done and suggested that a cost limit be set on the amount the board would be willing to spend on architectural plans. Neither matter was ever submitted to a vote.

Following the defeat of the resolution, Feraca said he will confer with board attorney Charles Gaffney to see if a resolution is needed. The building committee will meet next week to further consider the matter.

In other business the board voted unanimously to cancel all contracts with the G. Ausanio and Sons bus company as of October 29. Until that time the contracts will remain suspended. The action stems from the company's failure to pick up several hundred students last Friday morning. Although Transportation Committee Chairman Richard Skala said the district has received no formal reason for the company's action, reports indicate that the buses were subjected to a State Department of Transportation inspection Friday morning following complaints of brake failure on one of the buses last week.

Also last night, Hofbauer announced membership appointments to the district's two citizen's advisory committees. The committees are being formed to enable the public to become involved with school district policy and to create better relations between the board and members of the community.

HURLEY WALK

You Name It, Hurley Will Have It

HURLEY — Historic Hurley goes all out Saturday with a huge celebration commemorating the burning of Kingston and the walk by its residents to Hurley 200 years ago.

The Hurley Bicentennial Commission has planned a three mile walk in which everyone may participate. Bicycles horses, wagons, carriages and other slowmoving forms of transportation are encouraged to join the main march, which leaves the Senate House in Kingston at 10:30 a.m. and proceeds to Hurley via the Kingston Shopping Plaza, Hurley Avenue, and Old Route 209.

Another story on Hurley Day is on page 10.

Free buses will leave the Senate House at the same time and travel to Hurley by another route. The commission has asked the public to use the buses rather than private cars.

Vice President Nelson Rockefeller, Governor Hugh Carey and all elected national, state, county and local officials have been invited to attend. Among those committed to attend are Kingston Mayor Francis Koenig and members of the Kingston Common Council, Rep. Matthew McHugh D-27th Dist., State Senator Edwyn Mason, R-48th Dist., Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey Jr., D-101st Dist., and his opponent in the upcoming elect-on, Maurice Rosenstock. Hurley Supervisor Raymond "Jake" Croswell, the Hurley town board, and numerous others, including members of the Ulster County Legislature, will also be present.

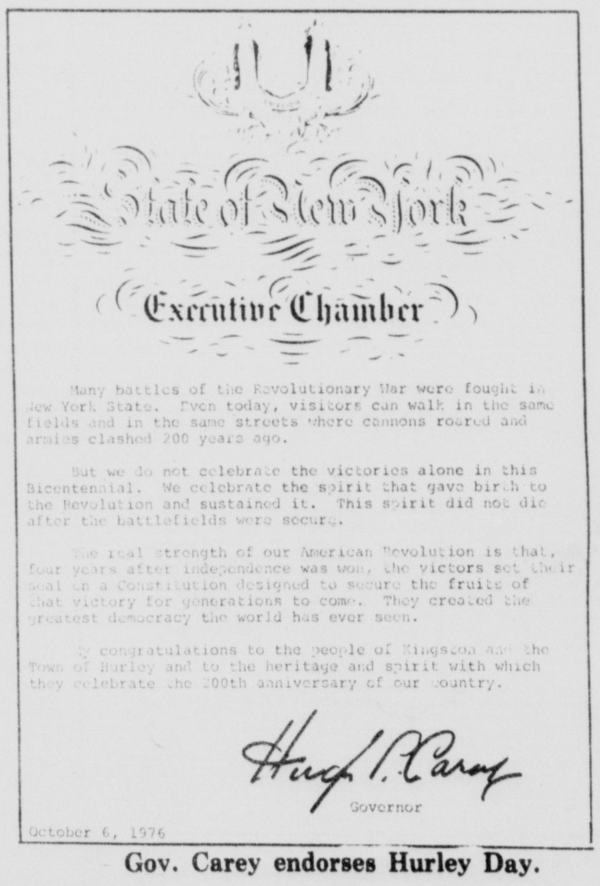

Marchers will find refreshments and bathroom facilities at John A. Coleman High School, the mid-point of the three-mile hike.

The march will end with a ceremony at the Hurley library and town hall office. After an invocation by the Rev. Charles Stickney, pastor of the Hurley Reformed Church, the American Revolution Brigade will fire a cannon volley and bugler David Winnie will sound aasembly. Chairman John Warren will introduce visiting dignitaries and Harry Rigby, state and national representative of the Bicentennial Commission, will present Croswell with a scroll designating Hurley as a Bicentennial community. Koenig will lead the Pledge of Allegiance, and Sister Catherine Gormley, principal of Coleman High School, will give the benediction.

Other events include a Punch and Judy Show by the Hamlet Theater Puppets at the Hurley Elementary School and a demonstration by the Ulster County Vaulting Association from Woodstock Stables.

The program also includes: A firefighting demonstration by the Hurley Fire Company, a concert by the brass ensemble of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic, a drawing for a Bicentennial Afghan, sponsored by the Hurley Heritage Society, and a sidewalk art display by the UC Artist's Association.

Croswell and members of the town board will reenact, on horseback, General George Washington's visit to Hurley in 1777.

State of New York
Executive Chamber

Many battles of the Revolutionary War were fought in New York State. Even today, visitors can walk in the same fields and in the same streets where cannons roared and armies clashed 200 years ago.

But we do not celebrate the victories alone in this Bicentennial. We celebrate the spirit that gave birth to the Revolution and sustained it. This spirit did not die after the battlefields were secure.

The real strength of our American Revolution is that, four years after independence was won, the victors set their seal on a Constitution designed to secure the fruits of that victory for generations to come. They created the greatest democracy the world has ever seen.

My congratulations to the people of Kingston and the Town of Hurley and to the heritage and spirit with which they celebrate the 200th anniversary of our country.

Sewer Sinking, Super Crys Poor

SAUGERTIES — To solve the sinking sewer problem in Barclay Heights, Halmar Construction Company wants $800,000 more to finish the job, but supervisor Frank Greco says that figure is not "appropriate."

To solve the road problems created by the sewer diggers, the Barclay Heights Homeowners want the town to pick up a $50,000 repaving tab. Greco says, "We don't have the money."

At last night's town board meeting, Greco said the board had just approved a $260,000 note to pay for construction engineering services in the Barclay Heights Sewer Improvement District. But he balked at the additional $800,000 Halmar had added to its bill for the new specifications needed when sewer mains sank because of unforeseen soil conditions.

Town attorney Michael Catalinotto said Halmar estimated it would cost $400,000 for added costs of tight sheeting down to subsurface levels of almost 35 feet. The remaining $400,000 would pay for replacement of water lines on Route 9W and Simmons Drive, and cover money "spent spinning their wheels" while work remained at a standstill.

Catalinotto felt Halmar "is preparing for potential litigation." Said the town attorney, "They know the board will have a difficult time digesting this, and they're not going to come up with a better breakdown of that figure."

He suggested the board contact other firms for comparison figures on the work required, and said other options on how to proceed should be discussed between the board and engineers.

Greco took a hard line. "If some other company can give us a better figure, then we should litigate ourselves," he said. I want to know if Halmar's figures are workable figures or outrageous. I'd rather see alternate methods discussed than have to go to court. My resort would be to go to litigation, but if it means $800,000, we'll have a bonding company stand behind Halmar and litigate."

Catalinotto agreed. "Halmar wants to have its cake and eat it, too," he said.

Even so, the board was not quite finished with Barclay Heights sewage matters. It approved the payment of previously negotiated easements with business and private property owners to put sewer pipes in the district in the amount of almost $11,000.

But a large contingent of Barclay Heights Homeowners had more than sewage on their minds. They were concerned about road damage done because of the sewer project, and they wanted the roads fixed and paved.

Said a dismayed Robert Tigue, "In some places, the roads are worse than the Ho Chi Minh Trail."

He explained that the organization had been told by engineers that if members spent $50,000 more, the roads would be repaved. But his group felt the town should absorb the costs.

He said Heights residents had been coming to the board for help with road problems for six years. They had been put

Client Slugs His Attorney

CHICAGO (UPI) — Lawyer Thomas J. Royce's effort to get a new trial for his client ended Thursday with Royce knocked out cold on the courtroom floor.

Royce's client, convicted killer Thomas O'Neal, 46, took a poke at Royce while the attorney explained to the court that O'Neal should not have been tried in the first place because of his mental state.

Loser Image Haunts Ghost of a Precinct

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — The three voters in Precinct No. 0555 are for Jimmy Carter, and that could mean trouble for the Democratic presidential candidate.

"We always seem to vote for the loser," acknowledged Mrs. Ida Bell Cooper.

Mrs. Cooper, her husband Jesse, and their daughter Debbie, are the only residents of the precinct known to most Portlanders as Lincoln Memorial Park, a cemetery.

Mrs. Cooper said the family voted for Adlai Stevenson and Hubert Humphrey, and backed California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. in Oregon's primary.

Although they voted for Richard Nixon in 1972, Mrs. Cooper considers him a loser because he had to resign.

Wind Fans 180 Fires In Parched Minnesota

By UPI

More than 180 wind-fanned forest fires raged over droughtparched Minnesota today, blackening woodlands and threatening homes in the Minneapolis suburbs.

Fires also plagued tinder-dry forests in Wisconsin.

Thirty-six new fires — fanned by winds of up to 50 miles per hour — broke out Thursday in central and northern Minnesota, bringing to 181 the number of forest fires raging over the water-starved state. Snow forecast for today was expected to provide a little relief for some northern areas.

The largest fire — touched off by an arsonist — crackled over an estimated 6,000 acres in the extreme northwestern portion of the state.

Another fire — 1½ miles long and a quarter-mile wide — destroyed three outbuildings and threatened a farm home in Minneapolis' suburban Blaine before being brought under control late Thursday night. Strong winds Thursday had hampered aerial efforts to fight the blaze. But by early today, firefighters were confident that they had the Blaine fire contained, though they were still a long fight away from completely quelling the flames, which blackened 400 acres.

Several smaller grassfires burned in the Minnneapolis suburbs, further theatening homes.

A ban on hunting, fishing and trapping has been in effect since Sept. 30 for the northern two-thirds of Minnesota because of tinder-dry conditions has ired northern Minnesota resort owners, whose business is drying up with the drought.

At Grand Rapids, Minn., the Itasca County Board of Commissioners planned to meet next Tuesday with area resort operators to possibly declare the county an economic disaster area.

A major fire raged in Clark and Taylor counties of central Wisconsin, destroying two unoccupied buildings between Thorp and Withee near the boundary between the two counties.

"We've got fires all over the place. They just keep breaking out," one forest ranger reported.

A spokesman expressed fear a wind shift would threaten several communities including the town of Lublin. An earlier fire was halted short of the homes of 250 residents of Cataract, Wis. after burning 60 acres of hardwood.

Newsprint Cost Will Climb by $20 a Ton

NEW YORK (UPI) — Newspapers east of the Rocky Mountains will begin paying $20 more a ton for newsprint in the next several months as a sooner-than-expected price hike by Canadian newsprint mills goes into effect.

The increase to $305 a ton for standard 30-pound newsprint had been signaled as early as August, when ConsolidatedBathhurst Ltd. announced the new price for its customers beginning Nov. 1.

That meant a $45-a-ton increase since mid-1975 and some industry observers, while predicting an industrywide increase early next year, expected pressure on ConsolidatedBathhurst to roll back its hike.

But in September two of the largest newsprint producers — Abitibi-Price Sales Corp. and International Paper Sales Corp. — announced increases to $305 a ton, although putting the effective date back to Dec. 1.

This week, they were joined by Domtar Ltd., another major Canadian producer, which announced its increase beginning Dec. 1.

The standard U.S. newsprint price west of the Rocky Mountains has been $300 since last July.

The impact on newspaper operating expenses probably will not be felt until next year as publishers — pummeled by the sharp newsprint price increases and Canadian mill workers strikes that cut into their supply — have been building their reserves of newsprint to last two months or more.

Newspapers also are looking more to domestic newsprint producers for their supplies although the U.S. newsprint industry only has a fraction of the Canadian capacity.

The Canadian industry says increases are necessary to offset their costly workers contract settlements, reached after many mills were shut down by lengthy strikes between July 1975 and last March, as well as other production cost increases.

The industry also notes U.S. newspapers are enjoying a good year as advertising has picked up from the improved economy.

Newspapers meanwhile, which adopted much tighter controls over their use of newsprint because of past shortages and their overall profits crunch, have kept their conservation measures in effect. This in turn has cut into demand for Canadian newsprint, resulting in some temporary mill shutdowns.

Hearing Set For Hearst Retrial Bid

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Oral arguments in Patricia Hearst's attempt to win a new trial on bank robbery charges are set for March 7.

Miss Hearst, 22, was sentenced Sept. 24 to seven years in prison on charges of robbing a San Francisco bank with the Symbionese Liberation Army 10 weeks after her kidnap by the terrorist group. Miss Hearst, daughter of San Francisco Examiner President Randolph A. Hearst, was convicted by a U.S. District Court jury.

Apple-Picking Is Fun — For The Very Young

A troop of toddlers from Hurley Nursery School got some on-the-job experience at picking apples at a Stone Ridge orchard this week. Collecting the ripe fruit under the supervision of Carol Weber were, left to right, Louis Scott Naccarato, Allison Watta, Stephan Devine and Spencer Stevens.

Local Constables Will 'Wait And See'

State Trooper Is Now 'In Residence' Here

WOODSTOCK — Constables and their chiefs in Woodstock, Olive and Shandaken have taken a "wait and see" attitude about the trooper-in-residence program now underway in the tri-town area.

The project, funded by a $45,000 federal grant for the first year and proposed for three years, resulted from an application for the grant by Lt. Stanley Kowalik of the state police.

Approval of the grant for a Rural Law Enforcement Program by the Department of Justice placed a state trooper in a "strategic position" to cover the three towns involved. Trooper Joseph C. Mikesh, formerly of the Hurley barracks, has been named trooper-in-residence in the rural, northern Ulster County area.

His duties will include assisting local constables when they're shorthanded, helping train constables in specific skills, assisting in arrest procedures and record keeping and being available to all three towns on request for whatever police work might be desired.

Chief constable William Waterous of Woodstock said he was "all for the program and willing and ready to work with everyone involved."

But Waterous felt Olive and Shandaken would benefit more from the project that Woodstock. "We already have an excellent rapport with state police," he said, "and have had for years. With the Kingston barracks only 10 minutes away, we have really good coverage. And Woodstock also has an important first in this area since our police radios are now being interfaced with the state police frequency."

Waterous felt Mikesh would be better able to assist Olive and Shandaken because of the wide geographical area constables in those towns must cover, and because both towns now have fewer constables and more limited patrols than Woodstock. And, although Waterous felt the cost of the program would be considerable in terms of taxpayers's dollars, he saw it as beneficial to the state police, who have faced budetary cutback problems recently.

"A trooper actually living and working in that somewhat distant area," he said, "certainly cuts down on mileage and gasoline costs to that area, and some good will surely come from that."

Woodstock uses both full-time and part-time constables, but does not patrol on a 24-hour basis. The town operates an around-the-clock emergency communication dispatch center, but police cars are garaged at 2 a.m.

And, with cars on state police frequency, the new program had not posed the problem faced by Olive in getting organized to participate in the project.

Councilman Robert Adsit, in explaining how the trooper-inresidence program would operate in his town, said Olive was renting radio equipment capable of broadcasting on the state police band. Town officials had vetoed buying the expensive equipment, and opted for leasing it for five years.

Since no break-down for distributing the federal grant monies was available, officials could not project any possible increase in police and public safety costs to the towns. But most agreed on another increase in their areas in recent years that might outweigh that consideration, should the program prove successful.

If it turned out that most of the funding would be applied to trooper salary, house rent and other necessities, they said, it might be worth it if the soaring burglary and larceny rates in their rural environs could be lessened with Mikesh's help.

The question was also raised as to whether one trooper could adequately cover the three towns. State Police Sgt. Daniel Scribner, an enthusiastic advocate of the program, thought so. So did other supporters, some of whom said that "just helping constables in outlying areas to get organized would be accomplishment enough."

After all, some people pointed out, the trooper-in-residence program is not a modern day invention. It had its roots long ago in an era when there were no police at all in many small towns.

Then, resident troopers were stationed in an area and towns in that region picked up the cost by providing the man assigned exclusively to them with housing and other expense requirements. As local police departments were established, the system faded away in New York. But it is still actively pursued today in parts of rural Connecticut.

History is simply repeating itself, said some observers, in the tri-town area of Woodstock, Olive and Shandaken, even to the point of possibly having to pick up part of the cost in radio equipment and other enforcement needs.

Democrats Say Candidate Exaggerates Experience

Finkle Fights Attacks on His Record

KINGSTON — The race for county treasurer has finally picked up some speed, but Republican Harold Finkle seems destined to run harder against the county's Democratic chairman than rival candidate Lewis Kirschner.

During the past several days Finkle's record as a financial advisor has been challenged by chairman Harold Brown.

"The Republican candidate for treasurer recognizes his lack of qualifications for the position he seeks and has embarked upon a campaign attempting to mislead the public into believing his work experience involves the management of millions of dollars of clients' funds," said Brown.

"Checking his claim I learned that this is a complete fabrication...Finkle has little, if any, experience in the direct handling of investment of clients' funds."

Finkle yesterday denied the charges and repeated his statement that he manages some $6 million in investments for clients at his First Albany Corp. job and for various religious charities with which he is affiliated.

"How do you get people not to believe this stuff," he said, waving a copy of the brown press release.

"People are going to read and hear these charges and believe them."

"The statements I make are simple and they are true," Finkle said. "I invite all of my fellow citizens to do what Gov. Al Smith used to recommend and 'Let's look at the record.'"

"It's not boasting to say that for over 30 years I have been entrusted with millions of dollar's of other people's money. And an average of only $200,000 a year over 30 years adds up to $6 million and that's a conservative estimate.

"The key fact is that in over 30 years I have been working with investors regarding the investment of their money in bonds and stocks and mutual funds," Finkle said.

Finkle's opponent, Kirschner, has been silent on the issues, maintianing only that his business education and experience in the food industry qualifies him for the treasurer's post being vacated by retiring Republican Fred DuBois.

The only new proposal for treasurer's activities has come from Finkle, who has suggested that the he would make the establishment of a computer accounting information system his first priority if elected.

Finkle said fiscal accountability and the accessibility of information are dominating requirements of a government financial system and that a computer budget system would be a tremendous tool for sound fiscal management.

The county now maintains its records on paper, which, Finkle says, often leads to duplication of efforts.

Mt. Marion Fire Company's 'Hot Potato' Is Laid to Rest

SAUGERTIES — The "hot" problem centered on alleged illegalities in last year's Mt. Marion Fire Company election has cooled off.

Last month, Kenneth Clinch, assistant chief of the Mt. Marion Company, asked the town board to take action to remove two members of the company's board of fire commissioners. Town attorney Michael Catalinotto called the request "a hot potato."

This month, Clinch withdrew his request for board action, and the matter has been laid to rest.

Clinch had originally charged that two fire company commissioners had been elected illegally in the 1975 election because of a violation in advertising procedures. He said the notice of election was illegally published in newspapers, and improperly posted in the district.

He also maintained he was the personal victim of character assassination by some company members because of rumors associating him with receipt of a "gratuity" from a truck company salesman.

After researching the legalities of the case, Catalinotto advised the board of his opinion that town fathers had "no standing, power or authority to invalidate the election. It was his advice that if Clinch wished to pursue the matter, he should contact the office of the state's attorney general.

But while Catalinotto was researching the merits of the case and the legal questions it posed, Clinch resolved the issue to his own satisfaction.

He advised town officials that he had met with three members of the fire commissioners board, and been assured by them that the continuing personal attacks and charges against his character would "cease."

Said Clinch, "I request that the complaint in my name be dropped." He agreed to withdraw his charges of any improper posting of the fire district election, which he called a simple "error in judgment." The ramifications that could result in any further pressure from him for removal action against commissioners, or possible "slander" action, he said, "far outweigh that error."

Did Alien Space Ship Crash Here?

MOSCOW (UPI) — A nuclear-powered space ship made by "beings from other worlds" may have crashed in central Siberia 68 years ago, causing an explosion 2,000 times stronger than the first atom bomb, a Soviet scientist says.

Alexei Zolotov told the Soviet news agency Tass Thursday he was almost certain the tremendous blast on June 30, 1908 was of nuclear origin.

"He assumes that the body, which ripped into the earth's atmosphere, might have been of artificial origin, i.e., it might have been a craft made by intelligent beings from other worlds of the universe," Tass said.

The explosion in a remote river valley in Tunguskajn, central Siberia, was heard 745 miles away. The earth shuddered so violently that horses pulling plows 240 miles away were hurled to the ground.

Scientists have said the force of the blast was between 20 and 40 million tons of TNT, or up to 2,000 times greater than the atom bomb dropped on Hiroshima in 1945.

There has been much speculation as to what caused the explosion, with theories ranging from the collision with the earth of a "black hole" — matter so dense it drags in every particle around it — to a crashing meteorite or comet.

But Zolotov's theory was the first widely publicized view that the blast was nuclear and may have been caused by an alien space ship.

Zolotov, a prominent Soviet scientist, and a team of assistants have been conducting research in the Tunguskajn area for the past 17 years.

Suggestions To Boost Ulster Business Conditions Offered

TOWN OF ULSTER — Louis DiDonna appeared before the Ulster Town Board Wednesday night with several suggestions for improving business conditions in the town.

DiDonna asked the board if it had explored the possibility of using excavations at the now-closed Hudson Cement Company plant for a landfill.

Supervisor Carmine Sabino said he had approached the company "but they wouldn't even talk to us about it."

Councilman Edward Crosby said other municipalities, including Syracuse and Philadelphia, Pa., had inquired about the possibility of shipping garbage there by boat for burial and had been turned down.

The board also heard Councilman Frank Sottile suggest that town residents forward road complaints to the town board in writing instead of calling the highway superintendent, but Superintendent Robert Mitchell said it was unnecessary, since he kept a record of all incoming calls. Complaints may be made between 7:30 a.m. and 3 p. m., he said.

Two requests for site plan approval were tabled until the board can meet with applicants for further discussions. Family Cleaners wants to open a drycleaning plant on Boices Lane and Citgo seeks a variance to put a self-service gas station on Route 28. Both projects have been approved by the town planning board.

Councilman Fred Wadnola said he had written to the Department of Environmental Conservation about noise from the Nelson Redi-Mix plant and was told that DEC, which has the power to enact noise regulations, has not done so because it has no field force to enforce them.

The board authorized Town Clerk Robert Morehouse to advertise for bids on two town-owned lots, one on Jeannette Street, the other off Old Kings Highway.

The board will hold an informational meeting on the 1977 budget in the town hall at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 21, and will hold the official public hearing on the budget there at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 4.

Pickle Juice Priced High

GONZALES, Calif. (UPI) — This farm town has had it with the pickle factory — so it slapped the owners with an $86.8-million sewer bill for a two-month period.

The City Manager's office said the plant, owned by the Langlois Four Co. of Los Angeles has been dumping too much pickle-processing debris into the sewer system.

After months of unsuccessful negotiations, city officials decided to enforce a section of the local law which sets sewer charges according to a complex formula based on the amount of waste put into the sewers.

Bribery Probe Is Launched

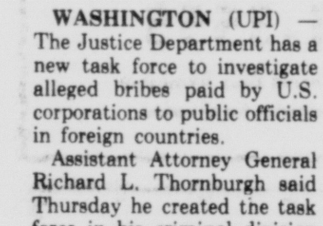

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Department has a new task force to investigate alleged bribes paid by U.S. corporations to public officials in foreign countries.

Assistant Attorney General Richard L. Thornburgh said Thursday he created the task force in his criminal division because of the growing volume of allegations and questionable activities that are coming to light.

The task force will coordinate ongoing allegations of illegal sales efforts by the Lockheed Aircraft Corp. in a number of foreign countries, Thornburgh said. The Justice Department has signed mutual cooperation pacts with prosecutors of 12 foreign countries involved in the Lockheed scandals.

"We are receiving a good deal of information from our overseas counterparts under the agreements," Thornburgh said. "If necessary, we will dispatch investigators abroad."

The task force also will review material from congressional committees and other sources to determine whether any firms should be prosecuted for violating criminal laws, Thornburgh said.

Luckey, Platt Is Bankrupt

POUGHKEEPSIE — A "plan of arrangement" has been filed in U. S. Bankruptcy Court in Poughkeepsie by Luckey, Platt and Company and a meeting of the department store's creditors as been set for Nov. 11 at 11 a.m. at the Bankruptcy Court Room, 32-34 Haight Ave.

Application to confirm the arrangements must be filed on or before Dec. 16, according to Bankruptcy Judge R. Lewis Townsend.

Luckey Platt, which opened a store in New Paltz in 1972 and another in Newburgh Mall in 1974 is presently in the process of liquidating its place of business at Dutchess Mall, Fishkill.

The closing of the Fishkill facility will reportedly enable the company to distribute certain of its profits to debtors.

Luckey Platt's Poughkeepsie and Pleasant Valley stores remain in operation. The Kingston, Newburgh and New Paltz stores have closed.

Newsday Poll Bad News for Ford

Carter Widens Lead in N.Y. State

GARDEN CITY (UPI) — Jimmy Carter has lengthened his lead over President Ford in the race for New York's 41 electoral votes, according to a Newsday poll released today.

The Long Island newspaper, in the second of three opinion polls it will issue before the election, also said Carter's position in New York no longer seems to be threatened by the independent candidacy of former Sen. Eugene McCarthy.

The poll showed Carter gained five percentage points over Ford since the first poll three weeks ago.

If the election were held now, the paper said, Carter would get 48 per cent of the vote; Ford, 40 per cent; McCarthy, 3 per cent, and 9 per cent would be undecided.

"Carter's gain comes almost totally at the expense of McCarthy, whose support, particularly among Democrats and independents, dropped markedly," the newspaper said.

The first survey, completed on Sept. 20, showed McCarthy would take 9 per cent of the vote then, Ford, 37 per cent, and Carter, 40 per cent. Undecideds made up 13 per cent of those surveyed and 1 per cent said they preferred other candidates.

"Although McCarthy's presence on the ballot currently is being challenged by the Democrats, who fear he might siphon enough votes away from Carter to give the state to Ford, the latest poll found that McCarthy's candidacy no longer affects Carter," the newspaper said.

The newspaper also asked respondents how they would vote in a Carter-Ford race. Carter's lead over the President dropped by two percentage points, with the former Georgia governor taking 47 per cent, Ford 41 per cent and 12 per cent undecided.

The polls are being conducted for Newsday and the Gannett Newspapers by Research Analysis Corp. of Boston.

The second survey, conducted between Oct. 7 and 11

•SEWER

off time and again, he said, with the argument that the roads would be dug up for the sewers. But they had also been assured that when the sewer district was completed, the roads would be fixed.

"Now the sewers are in," said Tigue, "and we're being asked to pay for the road work when we're paying through the nose for the sewage."

Others argued that the repaving work proposed would not be adequate. Plans called for putting the roads "back in the same state" they were in before the sewers were installed. Said Tigue, "We'll get only two inches of blacktop laid on what we now have, and what we have is a raised road with more drainage problems added to the many we had before. To resurface caved in drains and repave a four or five foot strip down the road will put us in worse shape than we are now. Tigue maintained the black top wouldn't last and to spend $50,000 for the work would be "throwing money down the drain."

Other Homeowners supported his statement. "We want good roads," they said, "because we feel we pay for good roads."

They argued that they paid 15 per cent in tax assessments into the highway department budget, that the town shoulders the road bills for everyone else—but not them, and that over the past six years, while no work was done on their roads because of the planned sewage, they had paid more than $50,000 into the highway funds.

Highway department spokesmen differed with those figures. Heights residents, it was pointed out, paid only $28 per $1,000 assessment from their tax money into the highway department. And more than $25,000 had been spent on roads in the Heights area only three years ago, it was said.

Nor was Greco completely sympathetic. "I pay a lot of taxes, too," he said, " and very little work has been done on my road since 1935. I haven't complained and I've ruined two cars already."

He also pointed out that, with the help of federal funding, Heights residents were actually paying only 12 per cent of the cost of the sewage project.

"If the board authorizes our town highways department to do the needed road work in the Heights," he said, "it would cost much, much more than if the contractor does it. It would cost the whole town budget and use all our manpower on this one project."

The town doesn't have the money ,said Greco, is overexpended in its highway funds, and must still face the cost of snow removal.

"I'd rather see the $50,000 spent on the very serious surface drainaqe problems in the Heights," he said, "and forget about recapping the roads."

But he promised Heights Homeowners the board would take a serious look at the matter.

"Perhaps," said Greco, "we can work out a solution. Perhaps you will have to accept what the contractor does, and then we can pave small portions or sections at a time as we can afford to spend the money. But it will take time."

But the supervisor had still another thought. "If you spend $50,000, you'll get a good paving and drainage job. If you let us go in and fix it and spend four times that amount, it will cost you more and you won't get the same job."

Added Greco, "I can't understand why you don't want to pay, if it is going to benefit your area most. If you want the job done with skill and you want it to endure, you should reconsider paying for it, since you could get 75 per cent federal funding."

Someone in the crowd had a ready answer. "Because we're paying for it, and you're not, and the town isn't," came the reply.

Canadian PM Hung in Effigy by Strikers

By UPI

More than a million Canadians marched, demonstrated, and hanged the prime minister in effigy in a nationwide one-day general strike against wage and price controls Thursday, but it failed to impress the government.

In what was called by one labor leader "the birth of the Canadian labor movement," workers in steel and auto plants, mines and forests, hospitals, newspapers and transport and service industries joined in mass rallies, placardwaving parades and demonstrations in over 150 Canadian cities from Nova Scotia to Vancouver Island.

Effigies of Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and Anti-Inflation Board chairman JeanJuc Pepin, who administers the wage control policy, were dangled from the pillars of the Ontario legislative buildings.

But Labor Minister John Munro said: "The government will not abandon controls because of the day of protest. To do so would be to invite disaster for Canada's economy.

"Why should anyone want to give up just when all our efforts are beginning to show results?" he said, proposing continued talks between labor, business and government on economic problems.

The national day of protest was organized by the Canadian Labor Congress against the government's three-year program of wage-price controls enacted a year ago. An estimated 1.05 million of a total work force of 10 million walked off their jobs.

"No other labor group has ever in the history of the world organized a protest, which spanned an entire continent," said CLC Vice President L.H. Lorrain. "History will call this the birth of the Canadian labor movement."

The president of the 2.2million strong CLC, Joe Morris, said at a Toronto protest rally of 10,000, "The CLC is prepared to continue its campaign of political protest.

"Let me make it clear, today does not mark the end of our campaign. Today you are carving a place for yourselves in history. We must continue to fight until we have eliminated controls from the scene in Canada."

Cancer Patient Allowed Banned Drug

DENVER(UPI) — A federal appeals court Wednesday authorized a cancer patient to import the banned drug laetrile despite the government's protest the drug is ineffective.

The 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled in favor of Glen L. Rutherford of Conway Springs, Kan., who claimed the medication was needed to keep him alive. The appeals court said he could import the drug made of apricot pits, for a sixmonth period.

The drug, which also contains cyanide, is legal in Mexico, Canada, Germany, Japan and other countries, but was banned by the Food and Drug Administration in 1973 after it was declared ineffective.

The FDA said Federal District Court Judge Luther Bohanon of Oklahoma overstepped his authority in issuing a ruling permitting import and usage of the drug.

"The FDA's record is grossly inadequate and consists merely of a conclusory affidavit of an official of the FDA which, in effect, declares that it is a new drug because the FDA says it is and thus is subject to all of the statutory vagaries of such a designation," the appellate court said.

The court also said the trial judge must determine if laetrile was marketed on Oct. 9, 1962, as a cancer drug and was generally recognized as safe, and also if it was used during the period when the Food and Drugs Act of 1906 was in effect, from 1906 until 1938.

"If the answer to either of these is yes, laetrile would be exempt as a new drug under the Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act," the court said. "We regard these questions as substantial, difficult and doubtful so as to support the granting of a preliminary injunction."

Bohanon, in addition to Rutherford's case, has granted requests of 20 other cancer patients to use the drug, even though the FDA has questioned the effectiveness of the medication. Two cancer victims, who were among the orginal plaintiffs in the suit died last year.

The appellate court refused to review whether laetrile was an effective treatment for cancer or if the new drug requirement was unconstitutional. It said the only issue was whether laetrile was a new drug, which falls under provisions of the Food and Drug Act.

Farm Milk Prices Up By 73 Cents Since Last Fall

NEW YORK(UPI) — A uniform farm price of $10.30 per hundredweight (46.5 quarts) for September milk deliveries to pool handlers under the New York-New Jersey marketing orders was announced today by Thomas A. Wilson, market administrator. The uniform price was $10.22 in August 1976 and $9.57 in September 1975.

The butterfat differential was 10.6 cents for each tenth of a pound of butterfat above or below 3.5 per cent. The seasonal incentive fund (Louisville Plan) returned $3,428,724.39 to the September 1976 pool. This added $.465 per hundredweight to producer prices.

Receipts to dairy producers totaled 737,203,134 pounds, 3.1 per cent or 21,826,312 pounds more than in September 1975, Wilson reported. Handlers utilized 386,309,162 pounds of these receipts of 52.4 per cent for fluid milk products (Class I). In September 1975 the Class I utilization per centage was 56.1. For September 1976, handlers paid $11.11 for Class I milk compared with $9.75 a year ago.

Wilson stated that receipts on bulk tank units were 716,218,613 pounds, up 28,256,264 pounds. He added that this was 97.2 per cent of the pool, compared to 96.2 a year ago.

A total of 347,325,427 pounds, or 48.5 per cent, of tank milk was used as Class II and was subject to the transportation credit which amounted to $347,325.43.

Producers with tank milk numbered 18,276, a decrease of 1.5 per cent. The administrator said that the total number of producers in the pool was 19,337, a loss of 3.3 per cent. Average daily deliveries per producer rose 78 pounds to 1,271 pounds.

Pool bulk tank units decreased 13 to 186. Reports from 109 handlers were used to compute the pool. There were 106 handlers with producer milk. The gross value to dairy farmers of September milk deliveries was $76,863,290.08. Wilson explained that this included differentials required to be paid to dairy farmers but not voluntary premiums or deductions authorized by the farmer.

All prices uoted are for milk of 3.5 per cent butterfat received within the 201 to 210 mile zone from New York City.

Labor Candidate Held For Yelling at Carter

SYRACUSE, N.Y.(UPI) — A 25-year-old Syracuse youth seeking a congressional seat stepped to within eight feet of Democrat Jimmy Carter Thursday and shouted, "You're the candidate of nuclear war."

Michael Gelber was quickly subdued with a headlock administered by Police Chief Thomas Sardino, who had jumped from the stage where he was accompanying Carter, who was about to begin his speech.

"You're the candidate of nuclear war," the youth screamed at Carter. "You're the candidate that if elected will bring this country to the brink of nuclear war."

Gelber had obtained press credentials for Carter's address at the Hotel Syracuse, where an overflow crowd estimated at up to 2,000 had gathered. After his 30-second outburst, Gelber was forcibly led from the room, charged with disorderly conduct and held in lieu of $102 bail.

He was identified as the U.S. Labor Party candidate for the 33rd District seat now held by Rep. William Walsh, RC, N.Y.

In briefing Secret Service agents before Carter's arrival, police had mentioned Gelber as an individual they might be watching for.

Rome's Burning, Fellows

Newspapermen are often accused of having a taste for blood, but it's impossible to take any pleasure in the ugly turn of the Hinchey-Rosenstock race for the New York State Assembly.

The candidates have abandoned the all-too-real issues at stake for a campaign of character assassination, backbiting, name-calling and public cat-fighting that does nothing to reassure the voters about the maturity and integrity of either man.

This week Maurice Rosenstock, who owns a factory in Ellenville, accused Hinchey of plotting to embarrass him when his workers called a strike. He offered no evidence whatever to back up this serious charge.

Then H. Clark Bell, a local attorney whom Hinchey defeated the last time around, went on the radio and began dredging up an alleged Hinchey run-in with the law 12 years ago.

Hinchey, unfortunately, has responded in kind with ads portraying Rosenstock as a liar and a "weasel."

Both men are fiddling while Rome burns. They seem to think the public is more interested in their personal conflicts than in the fact that Ulster County is going to hell in a handbasket, economically speaking. The legislature is in full rebellion against the state government, cheered on by the taxpayers, and businesses continue to flee or fold at an alarming rate.

That is the only real issue in this campaign. That is what the two candidates should be telling us about in their debates, speeches and advertising. There is too much at stake in the choosing of our representative to Albany to waste time on name calling.

Dear Editor:

The Irate Consumers recently received the following letter from one of our members visiting California. (Wonder why prices are so high?)

I was sitting in a cafe in Hollister, Calif., and got into a conversation with a local farmer. He was fuming with anger and sadness, because for the second year in a row he couldn't sell his largest crop, prunes. One hundred and forty tons of beautiful french prunes were dropping off his trees and rotting. His second largest crop, apricots, had gone earlier for five cents a pound.

He said, "They robbed me of my apricots, the best in the world, and are selling them in Montana and Colorado for 79 cents a pound to 99 cents per pound."

He thinks the situation for him and the other small farmers, who have been farming this area for a few generations, is worse now than ever during the depression of the 30's.

He said that many of them are plowing under their fields, taking out their orchards and renting off their land. The farm workers they usually employ are laid off in the height of the summer fruit season.

He said that the canneries (Contadina, Libby, Del Monte, etc.) are laying off, claiming over-production. A month or so ago, during the cannery workers strike, these canneries were yelling that there would be a shortage this year of canned goods and blaming the workers.

The bumper crop of California fruits and tomatoes has been allowed to rot and mold by the tons, while workers stand idle and canneries underproduce.

The farmer I met blamed the big farms (agribusiness) for the situation.

Has The Freeman Sold Out?

Dear Editor:

This is another letter concerning the Yerkovich Abduction Case! I'm sure it will end up in the basket becuase you seem to have stopped all stories concerning this case. WHY?

The Yerkovich's have had to put up with this kind of stuff since their daughter was abducted, now when you seemed so willing to help, you have dropped out of the picture.

I simply cannot believe that you have lost interest in this case. Most newspapers would sell their right arm to have the opportunity to expose these corrupt people in our Judicial system. And it you're not interested in this case anymore, that can only mean one thing! You tell us!

This letter may sound a little bitter, it's only because we can see what's going down here and nobody gives a damn! Everyone goes into their comfortable little shell and just ignores the situation.

How would you feel if this should happen to you, and on top of that you received nothing but more headaches by trying to find someone who will have the guts to help you?

It is obvious that the people of Ulster County are in real trouble, and their only solution is to stick together and help each other because who else can they turn to?

I would mention that if anyone out there thinks we're going to sit back and keep our mouths shut — they're wrong!!

We are going to see this case through and if not in Ulster County — I'm sure there is someone out of Ulster County — who will listen to what six hundred and forty-two people have to say on this subject! That's the number of the "concerned citizens group" that we have formed. And we are not going to stop!!!!!

(We sympathize with the Yerkovich's plight and have been glad to print what facts we have on the kidnapping of Mrs. Yerkovich's daughter. But a newspaper is not a court of law. We have suggested they hire a lawyer at least to pursue the legal aspects of their complaints. We have received many letters on the subject from neighbors of the Yerkovich's, all couched in the same language and apparently typed on the same typewriter. Printing them all would be repetitious and take space from writers on other topics. —Editor)

Don't Carry Cocoa Near Bears

Dear Editor:

I read with a great deal of interest and amusement a recent article published in the Freeman - the "bizarre" story of the Alaskan grizzly chasing Dr. Charles Jackson and his group in the mountains of Seattle.

It recalled to mind a fact that my husband taught me years ago when we first started camping in our own Catskills and Adirondacks. He always warned me not to pack any chocolate bars or cocoa with our foodstuffs...my husband said bears love chocolate and can smell it a mile away. So their story isn't so bizarre after all. The bear actually wasn't tracking the people so to speak, he was only following that delicious aroma of the hot chocolate the group had been warming up for their lunch.

So remember fellow campers, unless you want a Mr. Big Foot joining your merry group, don't carry chocolate in any form in areas where bears are known to habitate!

Safer Way to Kill Poison Ivy

Dear Editor:

I noticed in the Oct. 10 issue of the Sunday Freeman and in your "Life" section, page 7A, a short article entitled "Poison Ivy Cure." The article noted that "any weed killer that has on the label in small print the 2,4,5-T (the writer may mean 2,4,5-D) can be mixed with a lightweight lubricatingg grease...in an electric blender."

True, broad leaf herbicides are efficacious in killing broad leaf plants like poison ivy, however it is considered very bad form to utilize an electric blender that is customarily used in the home for food for such a project involving a potentially toxic substance.

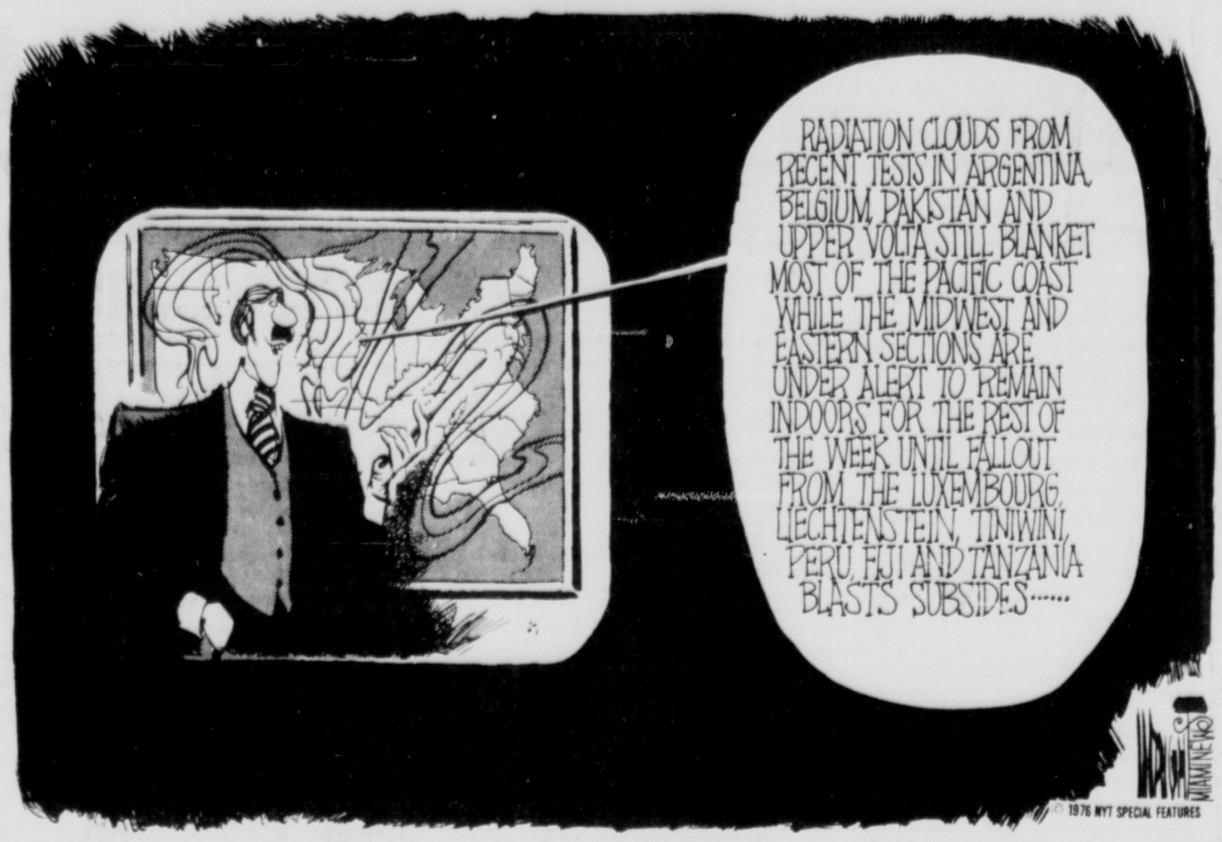

Of course we assume that the user was going to subsequently clean the mixer scrupulously. However some detergents cannot be as effective as we would like to believe them to be in emulsifying the "lubricating grease" and hence a residue may be inadvertantly overlooked.

May I suggest an alternate plan? Simply use the 2,4,-D or 2,4,5-D out of the bottle with a soft artist's brush, applying the liquid to the leaves - if you only have a few plants to deal with. If you have a large number of plants, a spraying device would be necessary. Of course one must be upwind from the spray and utilize a protective mask.

Pres. Flubb vs. Gov. Fluff

WASHINGTON - What Debate II showed is that Jerry Ford is a bad Polish joke. The President, who has spent an adult lifetime listening to members of his own party accuse Roosevelt of selling out Eastern Europe at Yalta, knows perfectly well Poland is a Russian satellite, and everybody who is expressing dismay at his words about Eastern Europe knows perfectly well that he knows perfectly well.

So why the hullabaloo? Why are the heads of a dozen and one Eastern European and Balkan ethnic groups being put on TV so they can say Ford must recant or explain himself? This is Jerry Ford, the same Jerry Ford who has been the principal speaker at 25 Captive Nations Day picnics. Why all this noise? The noise is because he said it twice, so it can't be a slip of the tongue. Either he believes we can disband NATO because the Warsaw Pact is an empty threat, which of course he doesn't believe, or there are two other dreadful possibilities. Possibility No. 1 is that our President does indeed have a brain the size of one of his golf balls and that he couldn't understand the question: "... Did I understand you to say, sir, that the RussianS are not using Eastern Europe as their own sphere of influence... and naking sure with their troops it's a Communist zone...?"

No, he understood but he couldn't answer the question the way he now wishes he did because he can't talk; he can't make the words say his thoughts. When he runs out of the tape on which is imprinted the grim political Muzak that comes out of his mouth, a defect in his design switches him over from the automatic to manual mode and he's likely to do anything... Start WW III, inoculate the whole population againSt parrot fever, put the Pacific Fleet on Red Alert because the North Koreans want to go 16 rounds with us over cutting down a tree.

Ethnic purity versus free Poland. President Flubb versus Governor Fluff. After Talkathon II you can see why the managers of both candidates must have come down with angina pectoris at the thought of having a third rostrum with Gene McCarthy standing at it. In addition to having a sense of hunor, by conservative estimate McCarthy'S IQ must be five times the combined intelligence quotient of these two dull normals. Why doesn't the League of Women Voters suggest that for Talkathon III we have McCarthy and Roger MacBride, the ultra-conservative Libertarian candidate. Since MacBride, like McCarthy, is intelligent, articulate and well-read, these two would have to be given a handicap because if they debated Ford and Carter even up they'd destroy the two-party system in one night. McCarthy, who is something of a poet, might be made to talk in rhymed verse, and MacBride could be required to stick to the 600-word vocabulary that Flubb and Fluff use in their failing efforts to articulate their basic wants.

Or, another solution might be to equip the major-party balls of fire with an Official Explainer.

Raisin Eyes needs one desperately because he's one Ford that doesn't have any idea at all, which is why he gets into trouble on topics like the Arab boycott. He wasn't intending to lie when he said that the government would release the names of the American firms complying with the boycott the next day; he got confused. He simply didn't understand what they'd told him to do. It's hard for a simple organism to master so many routines as quickly as a political campaign demands.

That's why he did alright as long as he was kept caged in the Rose Garden, smiling and signing bills. Even the best of the Official Explainers will be under strain to explain Ford's dipping into the 1972 campaign funds to pay for his clothes. The Wall Street Journal, which broke the story, has all but accused him of conversion of political money to his own use and then cheating on his income tax.

Will the news industry make a big fuss over these revelations or will it conclude that, if we do have another crook in the White House, people would rather not know about it? Some in the profession may also have had about all they can take of Carter's calculated vacuities and waspish, little viciousnesses.

"I would restore the concept of fireside chats, which was an integral part of the administration of Franklin Roosevelt," says the Peanut in an exultant rush of hollowness. Or we have this nasty (in reply to Ford's observation that the Kennedy-Johnson high employment was gained through war production): "Karl Marx said that the free enterprise system in a democracy can only continue to exist when they (are) at war or preparing for war. Karl Marx was the grandfather of Communism. I don't agree with that statement. I hope Mr. Ford doesn't either."

If you're going to red bait, Reverend, you don't red bait Gerald R. Ford. And if you have any respect for poor Mr. Marx, who was a decent, hard-working 19th Century intellectual, you don't ruin his reputation by linking his name with Jerry the Mascot's, and finally, oh Pious Peach, if you will leave off ruminating and imagining the hell that waits every soul who falls to the bottom of the cleavage, you might note that Jerritol isn't the first Republican or the first non-Communist to accuse the Democrats of using guns to get us butter. Isn't it generally thought that is how America emerged from the Great Depression, Doctor?

When a candidate loses in this debate, his votes don't go to the other guy, they just disappear. That's so many more people who have decided they will not demean the office of the president by voting to put either of these ginks in it. Moreover, voting merely seems to endorse a political process that recruits and selects such men. The question in this election is why can't a good-looking, young, innocent Republic like our girl America find a half-way decent date? It's two successive Saturday nights now that she's had to choose between Nixon and McGovern and Ford and Carter. Yipes. why can't a good-looking, young, innocent Republic like our girl America find a half-way decent date? It's two successive Saturday nights now that she's had to choose between Nixon and McGovern and Ford and Carter. Yipes.

DOONESBURY by Garry Trudeau

Jim Bishop: Reporter

There Was No Way Back

He went out quietly. With dignity. The late news was on, telling the world about politics and hijackers, muggings and murders. Milton's pulse faltered, held on until Dorrie arrived, then stopped.

He didn't want to go. Few men do. He had green plastic tubes up his nose and in his throat. "When... do... I... go... home?" he scrawled on a sheet of paper. He smiled from the hospital bed and printed: "I... love... you." This has the aura of a little boy soliciting the good graces of the boss.

There was no way back for Milton Goldstandt. He was 80, and played golf five strokes above his age. Last April he had a chest X-ray. It wasn't pretty. His doctor asked for more pictures.

Milt became irritated. He stood beside the golf cart swinging a three wood, a lean man with an elegantly dressed mind.

"Now, Jim," he said, as though he was selling logic, "if there is something bad going on, there is no way I'm going to have surgery. If there isn't anything bad, why put me through all these silly tests?"

He executed his classic swing. The white ball flew, hopped and stopped 180 yards away. He slammed the club into thc bag, put the cover on, and sat. "The hell with the doctors," I said.

The plot began there. He and I decided that it was a sinus condition. Nothing more; nothing less. Goldstandt became his own physician. Desert air, he said, dries the sinus. We would go to Las Vegas. The four of us made the trip twice in three months.

I am sure that there are other wives as devoted as Dorothy Goldstandt, but none can surpass her. She sat at his side through the long naps, the coughing convulsions, the spectrum of bright blood on Kleenex.

She babied him to eat breakfast; she coaxed. She cradled his head in her arms. She commanded. Each day it became more difficult to get out of bed at any hour - to shower, to shave, to dress, to display the courage which was dying in his heart.

He was born to a Jewish family out of Sweden. He grew up in Kansas City. He was a life member of the Million Dollar Round Table, but he recalled that, when he sold his first $2,000 life insurance policy, he fell from an office chair, fainting from hunger.

Chicago hogged all the mature years. He found satisfaction in becoming a financial consultant. He sold hundreds of millions of dollars to bankers, brokers and developers and took 2 per cent off the top.

He built a high-rise apartment house in Florida. Milton saw a recession coming and bought government bonds. He was an old success when I met him. Men my age seldom become buddies of gentlemen a generation older.

Goldstandt could relate to any age. My son-in-law, Paul Sayrs, became his friend and called him "Milt." His generosity was a source of embarrassment to friends, head waiters, golf starters, caddies.

There was a point, in late August, when Dorrie and I began to wonder who was fooling whom. Milt no longer used the word "sinus." Slyly he would ask, "Is there any cure for this thing - whatever it is?"

Milt had to go. Now he knew it. He did not weep, nor ask for mercy. He dreaded the dark, and he asked for a ray of light. They called Dorrie. She sat holding his hand, whispering the words he wanted to hear.

His heart stopped. The world didn't. It continued its slow spin eastward. What we lost was a rare American...

Vietnam Strife Goes On

WASHINGTON — The Communists who have taken over Vietnam reportedly are holding between 200,000 and 300,000 political prisoners in "reeducation camps."

Not only former officials of the fallen Saigon regime, but some of its most outspoken opponents, have been herded into the prison camps. Among them are some of the militant Buddhists, Hoa Hao leaders and Third Force parliamentarians who gave ex-President Nguyen Van Thieu so much trouble during the Vietnam War.

Many of these critics of Thieu, once hailed by the Conmunists in the north, have now been jailed by the Communists. Their offense: they are not only anti-Thieu but anti-Communist as well.

The intelligence about the political prisoners in Vietnam comes from an unexpected source — the liberal group, called SANE, which vigorously opposed U.S' participation in the Vietnam War. SANE was accused during the Nixon years of being soft on the Vietnamese Communists.

But SANE's executive director, Sanford Gottlieb, has taken the Communists to task in a private letter to the Vietnam government's observer at the United Nations, Dinh Ba Thi.

Citing private reports "from Vietnamese inside and outside their native land," SANE accuses the Communist regime of detaining up to 300,000 "political prisoners in your country" — a number which he alleges is "far in excess of those military and civilian officials who formerly served the Saigon regime."

Adds SANE sternly: "We are distressed to learn that some of the 'detainees' have been deprived of all contact with their families. Hopes for normalization and justice cannot suppress our concern for the human rights of those your government finds in need of 'reeducation.'"

The letter points out that the new Vietnam government often speaks of "human rights" and "reconciliation." It is all the more important, therefore, for Vietnam to "issue a complete accounting of all political detainees ... and to facilitate inspection by an international agency," SANE declares.

Footnote: The Vietnam government has insisted that only those who were active in the Saigon regime or who had developed "negative" attitudes were locked up in the re-education camps.

PRE-ELECTION PURGE: The federal regulatory agency which is supposed to protect the public from excessive fuel profits is going through a brutal pre-election purge of consumer advocates.

In one of the most cynical moves in recent memory, four of the top pro-consumer lawyers at the Federal Power Commission have been sent to the block. The FPC influenccs the price consumers must pay for natural gas and, to a lesser extent, oil, coal and other fuels.

The downgrading of one attorney, Russell Mamone, appears directly related to his congressional testimony against Mobil, Gulf and Tenneco. He is an expert on the offshore oil and gas fields that the oil industry covets. By favoring the public interest over the oil interests, he antagonized the powerful oil crowd.

He has now been relegated to the FPC's bureaucratic Siberia, a lowly post dealing with hydroelectric power.

Another tough, pro-consumer man, Jon Lotis, an assistant general counsel, has been ousted from the position where he fought vainly to hold down pipeline and electricity rates. His title remains the same, but his power is gone.

Cyril Wofsy, whose legs had to be amputated after he was injured in a World War II raid over Germany, fought just as bravely for the consumers on the breaucratic battlefield. He became an acting assistant counsel, but then was hounded back to a lower status by the commissioners who serve the oil interests. Now he will be reduced to handling minor electricity cases.

Joel Cockrell, a trial attorney who fought the giant El Paso natural gas conglomerate, has suddenly been pulled off the care. He has been replaced by a lawyer who is identified with the FPC's pro-industry forces.

Our sources say the purge was carried out by Chairman Richard Dunham in order to present the next president with a commission that is already stacked in favor of the gas and oil tycoons.

Footnote: Dunham couldn't be reached. Vice Chairman John Holloman said the FPC had delegated broad administrative powers to Dunham who, apparently, is making the most of them.

HEADLINES AND FOOTNOTES: Virginia's Sen. Harry Byrd, deriding his Democratic campaign opponent, Elmo Zumwalt, recently grumped: "Some people think they can become voting residents of Virginia one year and ... U.S. Senators the next." According to historical documents, many of Byrd's forebears were notorious Tories. One of them, Mary Willing Byrd, harbored the traitor Benedict Arnold at her Virqinia plantation. Zumwalt's grandfathers, on the other hand, fought valiantly in the Virginia militia. One ancestor, John Zumwalt, battled the British in spite of a severe arm injury that should have kept him out of the Revolution.

— President Ford has been calling on his corporate friends to fill gaps in his political team. Lockheed has provided him with Robert Kees, who is a deputy coordinator of "People for Ford." And Potlatch Forest let him use Jeff Eves during Ford's California visit. The President has had a close relationship with executives of both corporations. The two borrowed campaign aides say they are doing their political work on their own time.

— The response of House Democratic leader Thomas "Tip" O'Neill to an attack on him in a newly published book by Republican leader John Rhodes was swift and unsubtle. O'Neill donated $500 to the campaign of Rhodes' opponent, Patricia Fullinwider, a Tempe, Ariz., housewife.

Schools to Stress Civic Ed

ALBANY, N.Y.(UPI) — The State Education Department is developing what Education Commissioner Ewald Nyquist has termed "one of the biggest curriculum changes in the next decade."

Courses and teaching materials being drafted and tried in a few school districts would put a new emphasis on law-related education in the curriculum of elementary and secondary schools.

Nyquist said Thursday that the project "has variously been referred to as education for citizenship or civic responsibility, values education, law-related education, morals education, and global interdependence."

It is funded in part by $360,000 in federal funds. The State Bar Association has committed funds and attorneys' volunteer time to the project as a means to "get lawyers out into the country ... to demonstrate that they're not all like John Mitchell and Richard Nixon," according to Daniel Goldstein, a representative of the lawyers' group.

Ronald Gerlach, an assistant professor at State University of New York at Buffalo and an author of a textbook frequently used in such courses, said the project was "another vehicle to develop a more informed, analytic citizenry." He said since the Law, Youth and Citizenship Program was established in 1974, about 500 teachers had been trained to conduct such courses.

James Carroll, a social studies teacher from West Hill High School near Syracuse, serves as one of four regional coordinators for the project. He said "a consortium" of eight central New Yorkk school districts was cooperating in the program.

A total of 2,000 students are participating in the program, with another 2,000 acting as a control group and a computerbased system being used to monitor student progress and compare it with pupils in the control group, Carroll said.

A large part of the work has been to develop lesson packets that are "infused into existing curricula" at grades 5, 8 and 11, Carroll said.

As an example of some law-related activities undertaken by pupils in the program, Carroll cited a youth conference sponsored jointly by the district attorney's office, students canvassing for voter registration, and the Syracuse Police Department's "Officer Friendly" and "Stranger Danger" program for elementary schools.

CAF Not Sorry for Bomb Act

HARLINGEN, Tex.(UPI) — The Confederate Air Force's reenactment of the bombing of Hiroshima was merely another simulation of World War II air battles and was not meant to offend the Japanese government, according to a CAF spokesman.

But Col. Glenn Bercot stopped short Thursday of offering any apology to the Japanese for last weekend's performance.

"It was a simulation, just like we do in the Tora, Tora act, like we do in the invasion of Normandy, the battle for the Marianas and the bomb drops over Germany during the war. It was just one of the historic events that is being reflown," Berot said.

He said the CAF would send a response to a cablegram from the Japanese government protesting the re-enactment and also would respond to the apology the U.S. Embassy in Tokyo sent to the Japanese parliament.

"We were really surprised to have received a cablegram like this from Japan," Bercot said. He said no bad taste was intended or included in the recreation.

The CAF collects and flies World War II aircraft and last weekend sponsored a flyover by a B29 piloted by retired Air Force Gen. Paul Tibbets, commander of the "Enola Gay," the plane that dropped the A-bomb on Hiroshima on Aug. 6, 1945. However, Bercot said no bomb was dropped in the air-show although on land a flash and mushroom smoke cloud were recreated.

"No," he said. "There was no intention for that in any manner. Col. Tibbets was rechecked out in a B29, requalified. A B29 happened to be flying over. There was no opening of bomb bay doors or anything else like that. In fact they were closed."

The U.S. Air Force Blue Angels flying team also took part in the Harlingen air show and Bercot said he had "no idea right now what the attitude might be" on whether the team would be allowed to fly in future CAF events.

Thais Being 'Re-educated' Junta Rules Out Democracy

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Thailand's military junta has ruled out a return to democracy for 12 years and today ordered re-education classes for "anyone who stirs up trouble."

In an address to the nation Wednesday night, newly named Prime Minister Thanint Kraivichien said the restoration of democracy will take place in three stages, with the first elections held in 1980. An elected assembly will be given full power in 1988.

"We have to go back to the basics of democracy," Thanint said. The Thai people, he said, cannot be given back all the freedoms they had for the past three years in Asia's most free-wheeling democracy.

He called pro-Communist newspapers "Public Enemy No.1" and said combatting communism will be his regime's primary task.

The re-education decree issued today listed nine categories of persons who must attend the classes, including "anyone who stirs up trouble."

A legal source said the decree could be applied against almost anyone "from someone who causes trouble by spitting on the sidewalk to a Communist leader."

The junta overthrew the democratic government last week following battles between leftist and rightist students at Thammasat University in Bangkok.

In an apparent effort to head off a possible countercoup, schools were ordered closed today throughout the country for at least two weeks and the capital was placed under an indefinite six-hour nighttime curfew.

"Martial law will be enforced until the situation is satisfactory to us," said Gen. Kriangsak Chamanand, secretary general of the ruling National Administrative Reform Council.

No reason was given for the closing of schools, but a rumor that countercoup makers would kidnap students and hold them as political hostages caused a near panic among mothers in Bangkok Wednesday.

Bergman Sprung for Jury

NEWARK, N.J.(UPI) — Nursing home magnate Bernard Bergman has appeared before a federal grand jury investigating medicaid abuses in New Jersey.

Bergman, currently serving a four-month federal sentence for a Medicaid fraud conviction, appeared Thursday before the federal panel but declined to comment on whether he testified or turned over any documents.

"We'll have no comment to make today," said Richard Levin, Bergman's New Jersey attorney.

Federal authorities brought Bergman from the federal penitentiary at Allenwood, Pa. to the grand jury session which lasted less than 10 minutes. Bergman appeared briefly before the panel on Sept. 30.

Several weeks ago, the grand jury subpoeaned Bergman's records of the Riviera Towers Corp., of West New York. The U.S. Attorney's office declined to comment on whether those records have been turned over.

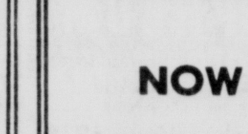

Two men who operate New Jersey nursing homes owned by Bergman have been indicted by federal authorities.

They are Roger Buckelew, former operator of the Wedgewood Manor in Elizabeth and Richard F. Gross, operator of the Lakeview Convalescent Center in Wayne. Both men were charged with medicaid abuses and Buckelew pleaded guilty.

Last year, the U.S. Attorney's office filed a civil suit against Bergman, charging he allegedly overbilled Medicaid by $371,613 in connection with the operation of the Lizmora Nursing Home in Elizabeth in 1968 and 1969.

In June, Bergman was sentenced to four months in jail after he pleaded guilty to federal charges he participated in a $1.2 million medicaid fraud scheme. He also admitted filing false corporate income taxes.

In addition, Bergman was sentenced last month to a year in prison after pleading guilty to New York charges he bribed state assembly Majority leader Albert Blumenthal.

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

Fashionable women in the 1770s could consult M. Legros' "Art of the Coiffure of French Ladies" to choose one of 38 outrageous hairstyles. The creations began by having the hair stiffened with perfumed animal fat, powdered and molded over a two to three foot egg-shaped wire frame. Decorations of ribbons, flowers, and feathers were added. Styling took about four hours to complete, and most women were "done" the day before a big event. The World Almanac reveals they often had to sleep sitting up the night before!

Goldmark Blames Welfare, Medicaid Over-runs

State Faces $229 Mill Deficit

ALBANY, N.Y.(UPI) — A half-way point update of state spending by the Carey administration projects a $229 million deficit by March 31. The report has produced a surplus of partisan claims and counterclaims about the causes.

This year's "budget summary," a report usually issued midway through the fiscal year, projects state spending would reach $11.1 billion by the end of the 1976-77 state year next March 31.

That would be $228 million above the level anticipated at the beginning of the budget year and $517 million more than the 1975-76 budget.

A $229 million deficit would be about half the $447 million gap found at the end of the last budget year.

Immediately after the fiscal projections were made public Thursday, however, Republicans on the legislature's two fiscal committees charged that the summary was "the ultimate political document" and "further politicization of the state's economic reporting system."

Last year, the administration did not issue the mid-year summary, citing the work overload on budget staff caused by New York City's fiscal problems.

Peter Goldmark, Gov. Hugh Carey's budget director, said a big piece of the spending increase was due to "estimated overrun in welfare and Medicaid expenditures of approximately $145 million." The administration had predicted these increases two weeks earlier and attributed them to an increase in the welfare caseload.

However, the GOP-controlled Senate Finance Committee distributed to reporters a memo between two of Goldmark's employees which attributed $70 million of the increase to a speedup in welfare claims by New York City and $35 million to the failure of Medicaid cuts approved by the legislature to produce anticipated savings.

Only $71 million of the increase was due to "inaccurate income maintenance projections," according to the Budget Division memo.

Goldmark also projected an $83 million increase in state purposes spending, a large part of which he said was due to a $29 million cost overrun in the Tuition Assistance Program and an $8 million boost in Bundy aide to private colleges.

Other increases included $8 million more for Corrections due to increasing populations, a $3 million appropriation for the South Mall office complex left out of the original budget plus other increased program costs.

Total revenues by fiscal year's end were projected to be $70 million less than the $10.891 million budgeted — a shortfall of less than 1 per cent. Goldmark stuck with his revenue estimate despite continuing Republican claims that tax collections were showing growth of approximately 1.5 per cent above the 7.6 per cent anticipated.

Goldmark also said that the $70 million shortfall would be nearly offset by $38 million in federal funds from the recently approved Public Works Employment Act and $31 million from the sale of bonds.

Assemblyman Willis Stephens, R-Brewster, charged the administration with "failure to control spending in their own departments, failure to get tough with welfare cheats, unauthorized speed-ups of aid payments to New York City (and) revenue figures adjusted downward on the basis of an alchemy they refuse to disclose." Stephens is ranking minority member of the Ways and Means Committee.

Sen. John Marchi, R-Staten Island, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said the summary was "the ultimate political document, totally rooted in fiscal contrivance and distortion."

Marchi said the summary confirmed "that the administration's accelerated welfare payments for unaudited New York City claims and administration management lapses were largely responsible for the supposed deficit."

British Economy Is Battered

LONDON (UPI) — New body blows at Britain's battered economy intensified calls today for something to be done. Only nobody could agree on what to do.

The blows fell thick and fast Thursday. Here were some of them:

—Government figures showed a trade gap in September of $610 million, the third worst month this year.

—The beleagured pound sank within a whisker of its alltime low, recovered slightly but still closed down 1.5 cents against the dollar at $1.6400.

—Prime Minister James Callaghan's government conceded officially it was giving up its target of less than 10 per cent inflation by early next year. It said prices would keep going up at the current annual rate of between 13 and 14 per cent for months to come.

—The stock market fell heavily at midday, but recovered to close with the loss of a full 1 per cent—down 2.9 to 289.

The worst news was the trade gap. Despite advantages brought by the cheaper pound, imports went up $123 million faster than exports.

This immediately brought a chorus of calls for import controls, clamping down on what Britain buys abroad. One came jointly from top leaders of industry and labor unions.

Callaghan and two other ministers just as immediately rejected blanket controls. But Callaghan said he favored selective restrictions.

A different "do-something" demand came in an open letter to Callaghan from the Association of British Chambers of Commerce.

It called for a radical change in the government's whole approach, telling Callaghan flatly that "the present policies of your government must make matters worse."

The Black Prince's Ruby, believed worn by Henry V in his helmet at the Battle of Agincourt, reputedly deflected a nearly fatal sword blow. It now adorns Britain's Imperial State Crown.

Waste Disposal Linked to Nuclear Power P.R.

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — The Chairman of the State Power Authority has called on the federal government to begin a national nuclear waste disposal program to help "win support" for nuclear power.

James Fitzpatrick, in an address Thursday before the Region I convention of the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association, said "the lack of a waste program is partially because there has not been much waste generated by the present nuclear plants."

"Demonstration of an effective program," Fitzpatrick added, "will do much to win support for nuclear power among all but the most diehard opponents."

He called for "prompt government action" to permit operation of a proposed fuel reprocessing plant at Barnwell, S.C., and the use of recycled plutonium in nuclear reactors.

FitzPatrick said use of plutonium could save about $6 billion over the next 20 years by reducing the need to mine and process uranium.

And, he added, "many claims about plutonium's hazards have been wildly exaggerated."

He said "stringent precautions are obviously required" in handling plutonium, but "the unblemished safety record of the commercial nuclear power industry provides every basis for confidence that the industry's use of plutonium will be marked by rigid and effective implementation of all necessary controls."

FitzPatrick said the a safety of nuclear power and its economic benefits "have been amply demonstrated."

"Every delay in construction of a nuclear plant — and for that matter, in construction of any other generating facility or transmission line — costs money, and the cost is ultimately borne by you and the customers you serve," he told officials of the cooperatives.

Hurley's Bicentennial Day Saturday Vaulting Into View

Dagny and Ingrid Olsen in the German stand

HURLEY — In Hurley, for Bicentennial Day on Saturday, Oct. 16, they're doing as the Romans did.

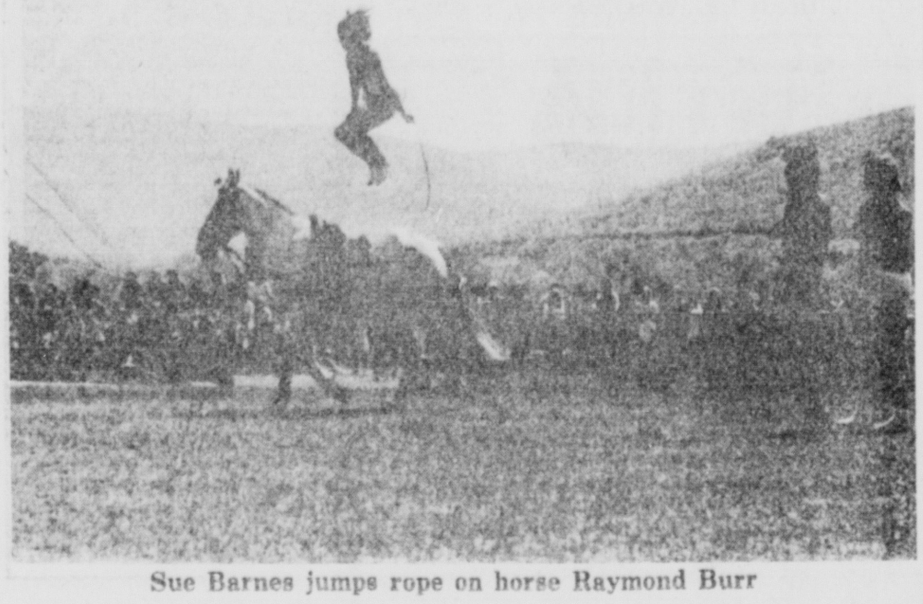

Vaulting, a sport that was the rage of the empire 2,000 years ago, will be demonstrated by the Vaulting Club of Woodstock Stables as part of Hurley's celebration.

Club members will walk in parade Saturday morning from Kingston's Senate House to Hurley, following Hurley Avenue and Old Route 209. Upon arrival in Hurley, they'll demonstrate vaulting for the public in noon exercises.

The sport, rapidly increasing in popularity, once served as part of the training program for Rome's mounted soldiers. Knights in the Middle Ages also practiced vaulting, and it was once included in the Olympic Games as a competition between national cavalry teams.

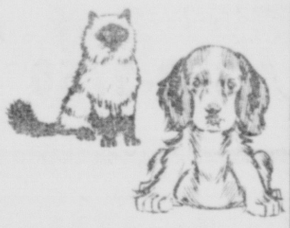

The vaulters of Woodstock Stables include youngsters from throughout the Mid-Hudson Valley area, including West Hurley's Susan Barnes, who has vaulted for four years, was a member of the Reserve National Championship Team in 1973 and 1974, and is a silver medalist who hopes to earn a gold medal in the 1977 National Vaulting Fest next summer.

The team performing at Hurley's Bicentennial Day competed last winter in a Virginia contest and took high point awards in both the novice and open divisions. They have demonstrated often at area horse shows, schools and fairs, and will host a competition in Virginia in November and participate in medal testing in February. A demonstration in May will precede the team's appearance at the National Vaulting Fest in California.

Lomontville Health Spa Is Eyed

Soltanoff Jets With an Idea

LOMONTVILLE—West Hurley chiropractor Jack Soltanoff smiled as he confessed, "I've bought the top of a mountain."

This, shortly after announcing that he was off this today on a five-week tour of health spas in five European countries to gain as much first hand knowledge on the subject as possible.

The two subjects connected as he explained his intention of constructing "Health Spa In The Sky" atop a Lomontville peak he had purchased.

Dr. Soltanoff, who writes a column twice a week for the Daily Freeman, explained that there was only one other spa in the area, Pawling Health Manor in Rhinebeck, where he does occasionally refer people but he felt it had become "too much of a fat farm," or reducing spa instead of living up to the original concept of joining a relaxing vacation to improved health.

The purpose, he said, is to give physiological, emotional and organic rest. "Most people go on vacation and destroy their health. At a health spa, you go to enjoy yourself and hopefully improve it."

The European trip he felt was necessary because "I'm in my late 60s, and I don't want to do things by trial and error. I want to do it right."

Health spas are in much wider use in Europe, and have been since the Macedonian spas were visited by ancient Romans and Greeks.

Ancient Macedonia is now part of Yugoslavia, and that country leads the list of European nations with 27 spas. Naturally, Yugoslavia is on Dr. Soltanoff's itinerary, along with West Germany, Austria, Greece and the Crimean section of the U.S.S.R.

At Crimea, he noted, a vacation spot on the Black Sea, the government has taken the palaces that used to be the exclusive hideaways for the Czar and royal family and converted them into health spas for use by the masses.

Dr. Soltanoff's 43 acres of wooded mountaintop on Johnson Hill Road, Lomontville, has been reviewed by a Saugerties engineer and a building contractor, and he plans to begin work as soon as he returns from his voyage.

It will open in the spring, he thinks. The present concept calls for 20 small chalets, two units to a building, and one large recreation hall, along with hiking trails and other outdoor recreation. There are streams in the area and a large natural spring-fed pool, he said.

And it is not intended for the wealthy, he said, promising a flat rate for everybody well within the reach of the average person who wants to get away from it all for a while.

A Bicentennial Lift

KINGSTON—As part of its Bicentennial program, "We, the People," the Kingston Trust Company provided the Junior League of Kingston with a mini-grant to reproduce their two historical slide series. The slides, which were availalbe to any group wishing to use them for a program, have been duplicated. As a result of this funding, audiences may be increased through the use of the additional slides.

"Stockade to Statehood," the first slide series, presents an early history of Kingston from the time of the Indian settlement. It traces the colonial development by the Dutch and English settlers until Kingston was selected as New York's first capital.

In the second series, "In Pursuit of Liberty," the importance of the battles of New York State during the Revolutionary War is reviewed. Particular focus is placed on the events in the Hudson Valley.

Letters are being sent to area schools for arrangements to have the slides borrowed for limited amounts of time and used by the teachers. Further information is available from Mrs. Bentley Jensen, Kingston.

Unitarian Lab Saturday

KINGSTON—A Membership Authority Products Lab will be conducted Saturday, Oct. 16, at the Unitarian Fellowship of Ulster County, 99 Henry Street.

MAP is an analysis and problem-solving model used to provide information and learning about the nine factors that have an important influence on MAP as well as providing experience in the application of this information in real group situations. MAP also provides information and learning about the three fundamental ways that energy is generated, focused and utilized in a group through membership, authority and product (generation history.)

The Rev. Blaine Hartford, unitarian minister, who was ordained in 1965 at St. Lawrence University, will conduct the Saturday sessions. He has held positions at churches in Watertown and Williamsville and is a former board member of the National Planned Parenthood Association. He is presently director of the Niagara Institute of Behavioral Science in Buffalo.

Light refreshments will be served by the local Unitarian Fellowship at Saturday's sessions, starting at 10 in the morning and concluding at 4 in the afternoon. A $2 registration fee will be charged.

Dear Abby

Mate Was a Marked Man

DEAR ABBY: I have been married only three months and the other night my husband came home with marks on his back as if a tiger got ahold of him. I noticed it when Ken tried to make love to me with his shirt on. I thought it was peculiar because Ken never sleeps in anything. When I asked him how come he was wearing a shirt to bed he said he was trying to sweat out a cold.

Well, I felt those scratches right through his shirt and insisted on getting a good look at them. I nearly fainted when I saw those deep marks across his shoulders and under his arms!

At first he said he had fallen in the shower at the club, but I knew he couldn't get messed up like that from a fall, so I kept after him until he told me the whole story. It seems Ken ran into an old girlfriend, she invited him up to her place where they killed a fifth of vodka between them and that's when it happened!

He said she didn't mean a thing to him, and there was nothing wrong with our sex life. Abby, if I'm all the woman he needs, how could this have happened?--BATTLE IN SEATTLE.

DEAR BATTLE: After "a fifth of vodka between them," I'm surprised (a) that it happened at all, (b) that your husband remembered when, where and whom. Ken at least came clean. Forgive him. Every dog's entitled to one bite.

DEAR ABBY: How come in the State of Pennsylvania a 16-year-old girl can get an abortion without her parents' consent, but she needs their permission to get her ears pierced?—JUST ASKING.

DEAR JUST: That's one for a Philadelphia lawyer to figure out.

DEAR ABBY: Our wedding date is rapidly approaching, and we face a terrible problem. My fiancee's parents are paying for the entire wedding. As a result they want to control everything (number of guests my family may invite, place for the wedding, etc.)

My parents are upset that they are not even being consulted. Please tell me whether it's proper for the groom's side to have a voice in wedding arrangements when the bride's parents are footing the whole bill.--CAUGHT IN THE MIDDLE.

DEAR CAUGHT: In the spirit of parental detente, some joint negotiation would seem to be in order. To proceed otherwise is to invite ill feelings when joy should reign.

Selective Antiques Show Set for Hyde Park Mansion

HYDE PARK—Dutchess County Landmarks Association will sponsor a selective antiques show at "Bellefield," the Morgan mansion in Hyde Park, Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 16 and 17 with a cocktail preview scheduled for this evening, 6 to 9 p.m.

To assure visitors the best possible selections in antiques and collectibles, Betty Ezarik, manager, who is noted for her successful shows throughout New England, is limiting the number of dealers to 26. They will display dolls, silver, china and other small objects in addition to furniture.

Under the chairmanship of Landmarks trustee Pat Harrison, use of "Bellefield" for Landmark's first annual three-day show was obtained from the National Park Service, to which the Morgan family donated the estate in 1975. A landmark on the Albany Post Road since it was built in 1796 for John and Susannah Bard Johnstone on acreage of the Great Nine Partners Patent, "Bellefield" descended through a number of owners to Mrs. Gerald Morgan in 1929. During the ownership of her father, New York State Sentator Thomas Newbold, who bought the estate in 1885, the distinguished architect Stanford White was commissioned to remodel and expand the original farmhouse into a large, luxurious mansion.

The admission for the cocktail preview tonight is $10 per couple with reservations; and at the door, $15. Admission to the public, Saturday, 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Sunday, Oct. 17, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., will be $1.50. Proceeds will go toward the preservation projects sponsored by the Dutchess County Landmarks Association which is a non-governmental, nonprofit membership organization.

PE Respite Center Sets Open House

PORT EWEN—A new center has opened for those people who want to take a break from caring for a handicapped member of their family.

Ralph Golding, Ulster County Commissioner of Mental Health, along with Joseph Ryan, executive director of the Ulster County Association for Retarded Children and Susan Neal, chief of community services at Wassaic Developmental Center, announced the opening of the Port Ewen Respite Center.

Weekend

Described as a "temporary residence for the developmentally handicapped of Ulster County, the Respite Center open house is scheduled for Oct. 17 from 2-4 p.m. at 213 Broadway, Port Ewen.

The center is a large, private residence overlooking the Hudson River with a staff trained and experienced in caring for children and adults, regardless of handicaps. One to one staffing is provided where needed, and the home is open 24 hours a day, seven days a week, every day.

As noted in a news release from Michael C. Anderson, director of Respite, "Parents and families of handicapped persons need time to refresh themselves, to spend a weekend or vacation alone. In the case of a family emergency, it can be very difficult to find someone skilled in caring for a retarded person, especially if that individual has a multi-disability. The Port Ewen Respite Center provides this kind of care while maintaining a home-like atmosphere."

Chris Rockets Yankees Into World Series

UPI Photo

Chris Chambliss reacts to pennant-winner

NEW YORK (UPI) — Twenty-five years ago, Bobby Thomson hit "the shot heard 'round the world" into the left field seats at the Polo Grounds to send the New York Giants into the World Series with a playoff victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Chris Chambliss did his part in commemorating the event Thursday night with his own version of the shot heard 'round the world — a leadoff home run in the bottom of the ninth inning — to give New York a dramatic 7-6 victory over the Kansas City Royals and send the Yankees into the World Series against the Cincinnati Reds.

Chambliss hit Kansas City reliever Mark Littell's first pitch of the inning to salvage a victory for the Yankees after they had blown a three-run lead an inning earlier.

"Now I know how Bobby Thomson felt," said Chambliss, whose second homer of the playoffs gave him a record 11 hits in the championship series and secured for the Yankees their 30th pennant.

"I didn't realize what had happened until I saw the fans coming from all over the place and the guys coming out of the dugout. It still hasn't hit me yet. I think it will be a couple of days, maybe when I see it on television, before it really hits me."

Chambliss was knocked down, pushed, pecked at and almost stripped of his uniform by the onslaught of fans onto the field and was denied the opportunity of touching all the bases by souvenir hunters, who made off with third and home before he could reach them.

"I didn't think I was going to get around the bases," he said. "I was punching and struggling and people were trying to drag me down and rip my clothes off. My only thought was to get around. I knew I had to touch all the bases. A couple of the guys (teammates) came out and dragged me out of the crowd.

"It's just a spectacular feeling."

That "spectacular feeling" shared by Chambliss and his teammates will undoubtedly diminish by Saturday when the Yanks begin their dubious task of playing the defending world champion Cincinnati Reds in the World Series.

The series opens in Cincinnati, with Don Gullett expected to hurl for the Reds. New York Manager Billy Martin is expected to pull yet another surprise from his grab bag of pitching talent and name little-used Doyle Alexander as his starter.

Martin, who played on four world championship teams during his seven-year career with the Yankees in the early fifties, almost deprived New York of its first pennant since 1964 when he bypassed American League relief ace Sparky Lyle in favor of Grant Jackson after starter Ed Figueroa gave up a leadoff single in the eighth.

Jackson allowed a pinch single to Jim Wohlford and George Brett followed with his first homer of the playoffs to tie the game. But Jackson got the next three batters and Dick Tidrow worked out of a two-runner jam in the ninth to keep the score tied for Chambliss.

"When Chris hit that home run in the ninth, I don't think I've ever been happier or prouder in my entire life, even when I got the hit to win the 1953 Series for the Yankees," said Martin. "I just started jumping up and down. I didn't know what to do. I waited for the ball to clear the fence — I never take anything for granted —and then I saw people flying all around me.

"To me, personally seeing it (the pennant) come back to New York means more to me than anything I've done in my career. Now I think I know how Casey Stengel felt back then.

"It's like a mother watching her child graduate from school. You're proud knowing you taught these guys and they put it all together and won. I pride myself on being a teacher and to see us win this pennant is simply the greatest moment of my life."

John Mayberry belted a two-run home run to provide Kansas City the initial lead in the first, but the top of the New York order took over in its half of the inning to give the Yankees the first of three two-run innings during the opening six frames.

The first four batters in the New York order — Mickey Rivers, Roy White, Thurman Munson and Chambliss — accounted for all 11 hits and the seven runs the Yankees mustered off five Kansas City pitchers. Chambliss knocked in three of the runs with a sacrifice fly and a forceout in addition to his homer.

Kansas City also nipped Ed Figueroa for an unearned run in the second inning on a pair of singles and an error by right fielder Oscar Gamble. But the slender 19-game winner held the Royals to just three singles over the next five innings before giving way to Jackson.

"It's tough to swallow," said Brett, the American League's batting champion. "We just don't have any more games left. We went from looking forward to what was going to be one of the biggest weeks of our lives next week to going home and doing nothing."

Kansas City manager Whitey Herzog added, "Let me just say that I've enjoyed being here...sorry it didn't work out for us. The Yankees have a good ballclub and they'll do fine against the Reds. The best team probably won."

SPORTS TODAY

Chambliss Is Dazed by It All

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sometime today, as the New York Yankees fly to Cincinnati to prepare for the World Series opener Saturday against the Reds, it may just dawn on Chris Chambliss what he accomplished Thursday night.

Chambliss led off the ninth inning against Kansas City's Mark Littell with a home run that broke a 6-6 tie and brought the Yankees their first American League pennant in 12 years. But when it was over, Chambliss showed little emotion.

"Now I think I know how Bobby Thomson felt," he said softly after battling his way through a rampaging crowd on the field. "I hit it and I watched it go out. I didn't realize what had happened until I saw the fans coming from all over the place and the guys coming out of the dugout. It still hasn't hit me yet. I think it will be a couple of days, maybe when I see it on television, before it really hits me."

Chambliss' homer, his 11th hit of the playoffs, set a record and brought back memories of Thomson's dramatic homer in the 1951 National League playoff. That one came just a few short miles away in the Polo Grounds and gave the New York Giants a pennantclinching playoff victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers.

"I'm just so glad we won it," said Chambliss, his eyes red from a champagne soaking. "I didn't think I was going to get around the bases. I was punching and struggling and people were trying to drag me down and rip my clothes off. My only thought was to get around. I knew I had to touch all the bases. A couple of the guys (teammates) came out and dragged me out of the crowd and, a little later, the cops came into the dressing room and I went out and made sure I touched them all."

"Graig was on deck and I was coaching at first and we took off as soon as we saw Chris was in trouble," said Elston Howard. "We pulled him out and dragged him to the dressing room. I don't think he knew what was happening. He was even fighting us off until he saw who we were. When we got inside, a couple of the cops took him out and made sure he touched each and every base."

Thurman Munson, who had 10 hits in the playoffs, is usually one of the most uncommunicative of the Yankees, but he was gushing Thursday night.

"A pennant is what every player in the majors hopes for and to win it like this — what can you say? It's like a storybook finish and I'm just glad we were the ones getting the happy ending.

"We were down a little when George Brett hit that three-run homer to tie the game in the eighth but I think we all knew what we had to do. Brett didn't hit it too hard—it just made it. I think it would have hurt all the more to lose it like that. At least there was no doubt about Chris' shot.

"You got to give those Royals credit,' said Yankee Manager Billy Martin "They scrapped and fought and made a series out of it. I thought we had them and they came back and tied us up. I'm just glad Chris got me off the hook. I think they would be second guessing me from now until doomsday for putting in Grant Jackson (who gave up Brett's homer) instead of Sparky Lyle."

Mickey Rivers, the center fielder who had four hits and scored three runs, was delirious.

"I'm just so glad and so happy for this team," he said. "I've always wanted to be with a winner and I thank God I got the chance to be with one. This is just the greatest day of my life. My goal has always been to play in a World Series and I'm just so happy to be getting the chance.

"Mr. Steinbrenner (Yankee owner) called me in and told me the team was depending on me and I was the guy who had to carry us tonight. It just made me want to win all the more. I was determined to do everything in my power to bring us that pennant tonight, everything. I didn't want people saying Mickey Rivers let us down.

"People were down on me when they traded Bobby Bonds to California for me but I told them all, 'let's wait for the season to start and then see what happens.' Well, this is what happened. We're the American League champions and maybe we'll be the World Champions, too."

Martin was one of the last Yankees in the clubhouse. When most of the tumult had cleared, he stood in the center of the dressing room holding a half-empty bottle of champagne.

"When Chris (Chambliss) hit that home run in the ninth, I don't think I've ever been happier or prouder in my entire life, even when I got the hit to win the 1953 Series for the Yankees," he said. "I just started jumping up and down. I didn't know what to do, really. I waited for the ball to clear the fence — I never take anything for granted — and then I saw people flying all around me.

"To me, personally seeing it (the pennant) come back to New York means more to me than anything I've done in my career. Now I think I know how Casey Stengel felt back then.

"It's like a mother watching her child graduate from school. You're proud knowing you taught these guys and they put it all together and won. I pride myself on being a teacher and to see us win this pennant is simply the greatest moment of my life.

"I don't consider myself a religious man — I used to go to church every morning but I never prayed for myself. But tonight, going into that ninth inning, I said a Hail Mary to myself. I don't think I've ever done that before in my life. It was a strange thing. I don't know why I did it but it just came to me and maybe God answered my prayer.

"I've been involved with a lot of winning clubs before but winning this is the best one. It's just the biggest thrill of my life and I played for some of the greatest clubs ever to put on a uniform."

Martin then moved slowly toward the door.

"Excuse me," he said, "I've got to return a call to Frank Sinatra."

Second Was Last Base He Touched

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — They could keep questioning him all night, show the replay a hundred times or do anything in the world they wanted to him, but Chris Chambliss was going to stick to his story.

"I touched all the bases," he said over and over again. "Every single one of the bases...I touched them all...My God, why do they keep on asking me the same question?"

The answer to that one was simple.

Chris Chambliss had just won the pennant for the New York Yankees with a ninth inning leadoff first-pitch home run off Mark Littell of the Kansas City Royals. And hardly had the ball stopped rattling around in the right field seats for a 7-6 victory than a substantial portion of the 56,821 on hand at Yankee Stadium suddenly went stark-raving, wild-eyed mad. They jumped over anything and everything and everyone they found in their way and swarmed over the field like a vast army of ants.

They all but swallowed up Chambliss as he tried to run around the bases.

The last base he touched was second, with his hand.

He fell a moment later and nearly was trampled underfoot by the mob which came straight at him like a thundering herd of buffalo.

The rules specifically say a batter must touch all four bases to be credited with a home run and Chambliss insisted he did that, but he didn't because it was humanly impossible for him to bull his way through the crowd.

Related story, photo on page 17

Some of the Yankees saw what was happening and worried the Royals might try to appeal to the umpires.

Chambliss, who set a record with 11 hits in the playoffs, already was being interviewed on TV in the clubhouse when Yankee coach Elston Howard burst in looking for him.

"You didn't touch ——— home base," Howard yelled at him.

Chambliss broke off the interview.

"I thought I touched it," he said.

"You didn't, you didn't!" hollered Howard, pure alarm in his eyes. "C'mon outside and do it."

Howard got third baseman Graig Nettles to help clear a path from the clubhouse to the dugout and then up to the plate. Chambliss never made it. There were too many blocking his way. He hasn't touched the plate yet.

It didn't matter, because the Royals weren't about to appeal the way Johnny Evers of the Cubs did when the crowd overran the old Polo Grounds and prevented Fred Merkle of the Giants from touching second in 1908. "Merkle's boner" they called it after the Cubs won the pennant on a replay.

Whitey Herzog, the Royals' manager, wanted to win so badly, he'd try anything — anything reasonable — but he knew in view of the circumstances any appeal would be useless.

"What difference does it make?" he said over Chambliss' failure to complete the circuit because of the menacing mob which almost stampeded him. "He couldn't do anything about it. Third base was gone by the time he got there. Somebody simply picked it up and took off with it. He couldn't touch what wasn't there and there was no way in the world he could ever get to home plate."

In some respects, Chambliss' homer was like the one Bobby Thomson hit to win the pennant for the Giants in 1951; in other respects it was entirely different.

Both hit their homers in the last of the ninth in the final playoff game and both connected off fastballs, but Thomson managed to touch every base and got back into the clubhouse with a lot less difficulty than Chambliss.

The two men were in the same state of semi-shock immediately afterward. Thomson kept giggling nervously. Chambliss was more edgy, particularly over being asked the same question repeatedly. He didn't appreciate that too much, and what made it worse is that some well-meaning Yankee teammate had squirted him with champagne, and it had gotten into his eyes.

As soon as the ball Chambliss hit headed for the right field seats, George Brett of the Royals sank to his knees at third base and started praying.

"I kept saying, 'please come back, please come back,'" said the Kansas City third baseman, whose three-run homer in the eighth had tied the score at 6-all. "I don't think the ball heard me."

A lot of people in their clubhouse helped the Yankees celebrate their first American League pennant in a dozen years. One of them was veteran Cary Grant, who stood in coach Bob Lemon's locker and watched the celebration.

"What did you think of Chambliss' home run?" someone asked him.

"What did I think of it?" Grant laughed. "I exploded! I don't think he ever finished it, did he? With all those people out there, he may have to come back at three in the morning to touch the plate."

A Happy Homecoming for Yogi

NEW YORK (UPI) — Yogi Berra couldn't think of a better way to celebrate his homecoming than for the New York Yankees to win the American League pennant.

Berra managed the Yankees for one season in 1964, guiding the club to the pennant, but failed in the World Series against St. Louis. That failure cost him his job.

Berra took over as manager of the New York Mets in 1972, took them to the World Series in 1973, but was fired in Aug. 5, 1975 while the club was floundering. He took a coaching job with the Yankees this year in a reunion with former Yankee teammate Billy Martin.

"It feels great to come back and win it," the Hall of Fame catcher said. "I knew we'd do it."

Asked to compare this year's team with the 1964 team he managed, Berra said, "This team has better speed, has a lot more singles hitters. There were a lot of home run hitters on that '64 team—Maris, Mantle, Howard. We don't have the guys who can hit the ball out of the park every time up like that team.

"Both teams were winners, and that's what counts."

Littell Joins Branca On Infamous List

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mark Littell always will be remembered for one pitch.

Despite almost anything else he might do in his major league pitching career, the 23-year-old Littell forever will be associated with Chris Chambliss' pennant-winning home run just as Ralph Branca has been haunted by Bobby Thomson's historic homer to win the 1951 National League playoff.

The question will be asked by everyone Littell will meet this winter. Coping with the burden will not be easy.

Branca, who had an 88-68 career record and once was a 20-game winner, never was the same after Thomson's home run. He lasted only three more years after the home run, with only a 12-12 record and an earned run average of more than 4.00 those three years.

Branca was crushed and overcome with grief following Thomson's homer. Littell was extremely poised and unbroken in spirit after Chambliss' shot gave the Yankees a 7-6 victory and the American League pennant.

He admitted, "It's a very empty feeling."

But when asked his feelings about suffering a notoriety similar to Branca, Littell calmly said, "I don't really care, because I'm going to be around for a while and I'll have other chances."

And he told reporter after reporter: "If we were in the same situation next year, I would throw the same pitch. Two nights ago, he swung and missed at the same pitch.

"It was pretty much up, inside a little bit, a fastball. I challenged him. I gave him my best pitch. He deserves credit for hitting it."

Right fielder Hal McRae ran back to the fence and leaped for Chambliss' drive, but he said, "It wasn't close."

The start of the Yankees' ninth was delayed seven minutes by the shower of debris tossed into right field by the crowd.

"I though we were going to walk off the field," Littell said.

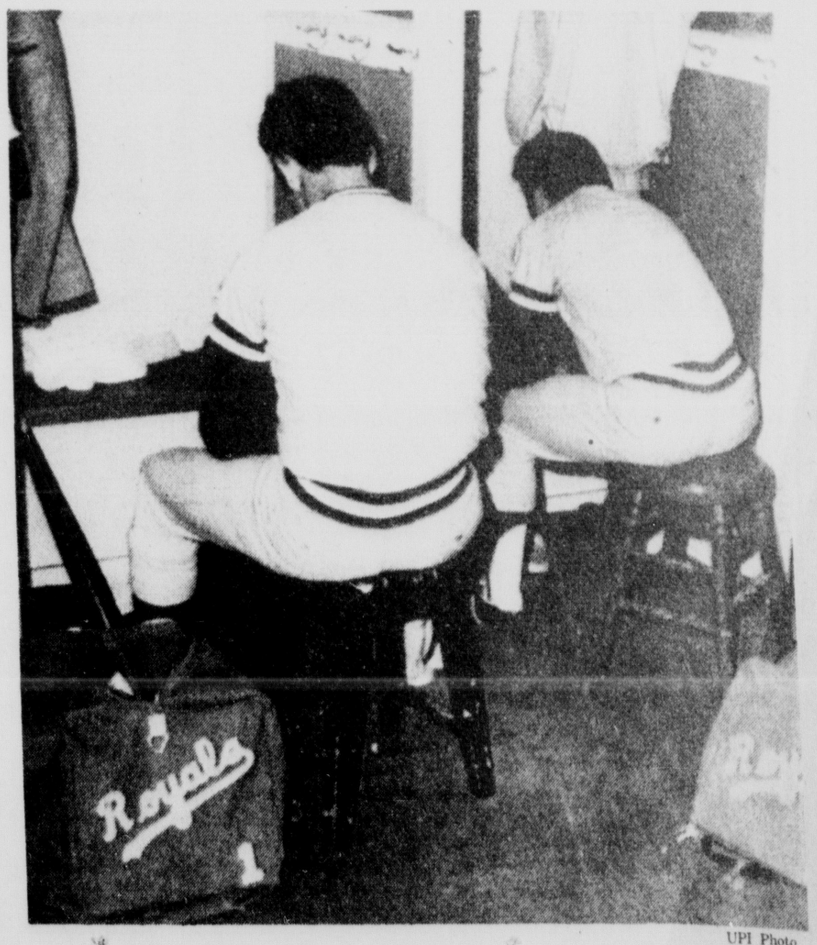

Asked if the delay affected him, Littell said, "No, it just kind of disturbed the rhythm of the game."

George Brett, whose threerun homer in the eighth had tied the score 6-6, said the sudden end to the game had a numbing effect.

"I feel like there's no tomorrow," Brett said. "We went from looking forward to one of the biggest weeks of our lives to going home and doing nothing.

"I'm going to Mexico so I don't have to answer all those questions about what happened. Hopefully, by the time I get back to Kansas City, everyone will be interested in football and ice hockey."

They may forget to ask Brett about the American League championship series, but the questions will be aimed at Mark Littell for a long time to come.

TRIM'S ARENA

"WORLD SERIES? I THOUGHT THEY DECIDED WHO THE CHAMPIONS WERE LAST YEAR!"

Evonne Is Pregnant

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The owner of the Pittsburgh Triangles greeted the news that tennis star Evonne Goolagong Cawley is expecting her first child with relative calm Thursday.

"I'm not very confident we're going to be playing here another year anyway," Frank Fuhrer said after he was informed of Cawley's announcement from Hilton Head Island, S.C., where she is playing in the World Invitational Tennis Classic.

"The two things it does mean is it'll hurt the sale of the team and lessen her value in the trade market."

Fuhrer is trying to sell the World Team Tennis club because of its $1.3 million in losses the past three years.

Cawley, 27, who married Roger Cawley in June, 1975, announced two hours before she went on the court Thursday and defeated Virginia Wade 6-3, 6-4 that she is expecting her first child next May.

Another Victory For KHS

KINGSTON — It was a successful trip Thursday for the Kingston High School volleyball team, as it returned from John Jay High School with a 2-1 match win. The team won by scores of 15-3, 12-15, and 15-3 to increase its season record to five wins and one loss.

Kingston coach Pat Burke felt that the team played well. "The defense fell apart in the second game," she said. "I think the girls were a little tense. But overall, we played better on defense than we have been."

Burke cited Lori Eaton of Kingston for "some very nice spikes," and noted that Diana Eaton moved well on defense. Stephanie DiDonato played a solid defensive game for John Jay and also served well.

In the junior varsity contest, Kingstonearned a 2-0 match win on scores of 15-12, and 15-10 to give the team a 4-2 season record. Michele McLane was outstanding for Kingston both on offense and defense.

Both teams will go to Spackenkill for their next match on Monday.

Oneonta Sweeps Hawks

NEW PALTZ — Thursday wasn't a good day for the New Paltz State diamond nine, as it surrendered both ends of a doubleheader to Oneonta by scores of 18-8 and 7-2 to remain winless with an 0-8 mark. The team was only able to muster eight hits for the afternoon while giving up 20, including three home runs, two of which were hit off pitcher Ralph Calderon in the first game.

Bob Marz was on the mound for New Paltz in the night-cap and pitched a five-hit game, but he allowed nine walks which led to the Oneonta success.

"We only have three pitchers," said team publicist Tom Martin, "so when they get tired, we can't give them a rest."

Bill Hopkins hit a three-run homer in the first game for New Paltz to spark a five-run fifth inning but Oneonta had already amassed an ominous lead and the team was unable to continue to rally.

In the second game, Oneonta was ahead 3-0 when New Paltz came to bat in the bottom of the third and scored two runs with two outs on a walk and four singles. Oneonta's pitcher Bob Sontheimer was able to resume his control and pitched a shutout the rest of the way.

New Paltz will take the search for its first win to Albany on Saturday where they meet Albany State in a doubleheader.

Will Injuries Take Their Toll on Kingston High Winning Streak?

By STEVE KANE
Freeman staff

KINGSTON — The question now is whether or not the Kingston High football team will fall flat on its face. That's the way the rest of the DCSL sees it, and there's hardly any other way to look at the Tigers' upcoming battle at Poughkeepsie Saturday.

"We'll be tremendous underdogs," admitted Poughkeepsie coach Bill Maher, "no doubt about that."

The background to the contest is simply that Kingston is alone in first place with a 4-0 record ...four wins against four dangerous opponents. Make that four convincing wins. The Pioneers, on the other hand, are 1-2-1, and nowhere do they begin to approach the Tigers in size, depth or talent.

An impending rout? The first KHS breather? Both are definite possibilities. But as always, there is Catch-22.

Three major factors, all potentially crippling, figure in this week's Kingston effort. The first is the psychological one. Will the Tigers let up? Will Poughkeepsie be primed for an upset?

KHS coach Tony Badalato thinks his team can avoid that pitfall. "They know this league too well," he's on record as saying. The Tigers also know that however successful their previous efforts have been they were not without some flaws.

Poughkeepsie, according to Maher, isn't simply all fired up just to knock off No.1. "The kids know they can be a big factor (in the DCSL race), and they know the competition will be the best," he said. But this isn't going to be the end of the Pioneer season. "We're just going to come to play," said Maher.

Factor number two is a little easier to assess—injuries. Kingston, for the first time this year, has a few casualties. Running back Rick Knox has a broken nose, linebacker Glenn Marrus has a bruised foot, defensive tackle John Falatyn has a bad back, and lineman Larry Zeiss recently stepped on a nail. All have been big contributors to the Tigers' current status.

"We'd like to rest all four if we can," said Badalato. "We've got capable backups," and then he named Vince Dingman, Bob Easter, Rich Dassie, Jay Faust, Ron Higgins and Rich Dickerson.

So the Tigers will test their depth for real for the first time. Knox and Falatyn are just doubtful cases, the others are definitely out for the game. It may not make any difference — Badalato certainly hopes not—but the Tigers won't know for sure until Saturday.

The third question concerns that first number in Poughkeepsie's record, the lone Pioneer victory. It came against Arlington, a team which was favored just about as heavily as KHS will be. It is a reminder that anything is possible on a DCSL football field.

"We know this team beat Arlington," said Badalato, "and we expect them to do everything they can to beat us."

Was that Pioneer upset a fluke? Not according to Maher.

"That was just as good a game as we can play," said the Poughkeepsie coach. "We just played error free football. We had no fumbles, few penalties and we didn't hurt ourselves."

The game itself should show a huge contrast in styles. "Kingston is very strong, strong inside, and they wear you down," said Maher.

The Tiger power will be met by Pioneer finesse. "They're aggressive, a big play team," noted Badalato. "I don't think they're a team who drives the football the length of the field, but they use flea flickers, reverses, everything."

For Kingston, Joel Etter will shoot for his fifth straight 100 yard game, quarterbacks Joe Kivlan and Bruce Schneckenberg will try to develop the passing game a bit more, and the big defense will be hunting for more fumbles.

Poughkeepsie's main weapons will be running back Carl Lyons, who Badalato calls, "super...one of the best in the league," lineback Rich Strother, who's had an excellent season thus far, and defensive tackle Bill Martinko, who'll take on the strong right side of the Kingston offensive line.

In other games Saturday, Roosevelt is at Arlington, Beacon is at John Jay and Ketcham is at Lourdes. Saugerties has the week off.

Numbers Aren't Fooling Highland Coach

By BRUCE GOLDBERG
Freeman staff

KINGSTON—Lem Atkins is not the kind of man who deceives himself. He knows that Wallkill High's football team presents a tougher challenge than his undefeated (4-0) Highland High School Big Blue have faced so far in topping Onteora, Ellenville, Liberty and New Paltz.

Highland has racked up the most yards on offense (1,098) in the Ulster County Athletic League, including the most passing yardage (339) while allowing the fewest points (12), first downs (22) and recovering the most fumbles (12). The numbers don't fool Atkins for a minute.

"That will all come to a crashing halt this week," he said. "Wallkill is a fine team with an experienced backfield."

Referring to Highland's tougher schedule the rest of the way, Atkins said: "We understand what we have the rest of he the season."

In succession, Highland will face the Panthers, Marlboro, Pine Bush, Rondout and Red Hook.

The Wallkill-Highland clash is the top UCAL matchup Saturday, with Rondout-Marlboro not far behind. Other games include Ellenville at Onteora, New Paltz at Red Hook and Liberty visiting an improving Pine Bush squad which has won two straight games after a slow start.

Atkins feels that the right side of his offensive line—Dave Will, Kevin Hansut and Frank Ronkese, all National Honor Society members—has been the key to the success of the Big Blue offense. On defense, Atkins credits a "team effort", citing linebacker Louis Morales, the front four, the cornerbacks and the inside linebackers.

"Our secondary hasn't had to make a lot of tackles, which shows you the kind of job the defense is doing," said Atkins.

Wallkill, coming off last Monday's 14-14 standoff with Rondout, is tied with the Ganders at 3-0-1 for second place. Coach Jerry Trezza was feeling better about the Panthers' performance after viewing game films.

"I think we did a pretty good job and have revised my feelings," said Trezza. "Rondout was a lot bigger than I thought they would be. They simply outmanned us. "Highland is good on both offense and defense," noted Trezza. "Last year I said their defense couldn't stop us, and it did, so this year I'm not saying a thing."

The Marlboro-Rondout game may not live up to its advance billing—and this is admitted by Marlboro coach Dennis Burkett.

"Onteora beat us up physically," said Burkett, referring to last Saturday's 18-0 Duke victory. "I'm just concerned about being healthy for Rondout. We've got a few backs who are bruised and bumped, but I'd rather not say who. This will make four out of five games we've played the traditional powers, and our kids haven't had a chance to lick their wounds. We don't have any depth. I'm worried about fielding a full team for Saturday."

Indeed, Marlboro beat Red Hook and the Indians and bowed to Wallkill and Pine Bush and has shown it belongs on the field with any UCAL team. But hthe tough early schedule and traditional small squad size is taking its toll of the Dukes.

Marlboro does lead the league in first downs (55) and rushing (831) and in pass defense (eight completions for 75 yards, seven interceptions).

"Dave Onusko is our quarterback back there on defense," said Burkett, referring to the five-foot-six wonder who is also the offensive quarterback. "Wayne Kaiser and John Gallagher do a good job in the secondary. They're both underclassmen, as are two of our three linebackers."

Red Hook Widens Field Hockey Lead

OCS' Gail Duffy (6) battles RH player for ball

BOICEVILLE — It was a day for lopsided victories in Ulster County Athletic League field hockey action Thursday and Red Hook again emerged unscathed as it was on the long end of a 5-0 score against rival Onteora.

"We didn't play that bad of a game," said Onteora coach Carol Okoren. "Red Hook was just the stronger team today."

Around the UCAL field hockey circuit, Fallsburgh blanked Rondout Valley 5-0, while Wallkill remained winless in a 2-0 game with Ellenville. The contest between Coleman and Pine Bush was postponed and has been rescheduled for Monday.

Red Hook pulled an upset of sorts against Onteora, as no team has been able to score more than two goals on the Indians' defense in their six previous outings. A win here would have put the team in a tie with Red Hook for first place honors, but it was not to be.

The score stood at 2-0 at the half on goals by Maryanne Kane and Diane Fenaroli, and Onteora was still very much alive until Pat Kowalski stymied its efforts with her 3 goal hat trick.

"Red Hook moved the ball exceptionally well," said a resigned coach Okoren. "We couldn't adjust to them defensively. They moved the ball back and forth across the field very well and it seemed to confuse our girls."

Despite the dismal outcome, Okoren had praise for Gail Duffy and Wendy Albrecht for their offensive play, and cited Dawn Oathout and Carol Gillsinger for their solid defensive effort.

Fallsburgh had a productive afternoon in the scoring column in its game, with Cathy Dill and Jackie Greak providing most of the offensive punch. Dill came up with the hat trick, booting two in the first and one in the second.

Rondout coach Ruth Stubbins was disappointed in the game. "It was a very rough game," she said. "Fallsburgh was very aggressive and moved the ball rapidly down the field." Janice, Slater, one of Rondout's outstanding players was injured during the first half and did not see any second half action as she suffered a bruised hand.

Ellenville got two goals from Cheryl Eikstza and Mary Craft to shut out its winless opponent. The score was 1-0 at the half, but Wallkill could not manage a shot on goal the entire game and posed very little threat.

"Both the offense and defense played very well," said Ellenville coach Barbara Murray, "we finally got it all together and I was pleased with the game."

FREEMAN FLASHBACK

25 Years Ago Today

October 15, 1951...Three thousand baseball fans turned out for Bill Whalen Day at Riverview Field in Poughkeepsie as the Elks battered the Jersey City Silk Sox, 14-0. Al Corwin, New York Giant rookie, hurled four innings and permitted only one hit. Catcher Wes Westrum of the New York Giants took a two inning fling on the mound...The Ulster County Tennis Club drubbed the powerful Texaco squad of Beacon, 6-0 as Chet Fox, Ed Lacey, N. Jansen Fowler and Irving Wheatcroft led the way.

10 Years Ago Today

October 15, 1966...Kingston High School's cross country team captured its 17th straight dual meet, 19-43, over Port Jervis with Al Drake winning for Kingston in 10:41...Gerard Boggs scored two touchdowns and rushed for 189 yards to lead Kingston to a 32-13 win over Port Jervis. Other scorers for Kingston were Bill Dugan, Jack Baltz and Tim Bowens...Craig Hubbell led Onteora to a 24-35 cross country win over Saugerties.

Foreman, Dennis and Ali All on Stage Tonight

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (UPI) — It will be showtime at the Sportatorium tonight with entertainment from George Foreman, Dino Dennis and even Muhammad Ali.

Ali is expected to be at ringside tonight when the top-rated Foreman meets Italian-born Dino Dennis in a 12-round heavyweight fight.

Promoter Don King has gone so far as to proclaim Foreman the "duration heavyweight champion" until he meets Ken Norton or Ali decides to take back the retirement announcement he made two weeks ago after his narrow defeat of Norton.

Thus, says King, the fight tonight is for "the duration championship of the world."

Ali has shown signs of wavering on his retirement decision and his advisers say he will inform the World Boxing Association of his intentions after he completes filming of a movie of his life. Ali took Foreman's championship from him two years ago in Zaire.

Meanwhile, King's proclamation of Foreman as champion is only one of several efforts to boost the live gate for the card, which also includes a lightweight title fight between Roberto Duran of Panama and Alvaro Rojas of Costa Rica. Both fights will be nationally televised (CBS).

On Thursday, the ninth-ranked Dennis refused to show up for an unofficial weigh-in ceremony, objecting because it was at Foreman's hotel and not his.

"He can come to me," Dennis said.

Foreman stretched out his hands when he heard and asked, "What'd I do?"

King claimed it was turning into a "grudge match." Few believed him.

Shaw Leads

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — Veteran Tom Shaw hopes he's solved the putting problems that have plagued him the last five years.

Shaw took a one-stroke lead Thursday after the first round of the $125,000 Texas Open Golf Tournament.

Shaw, 34, of Inverrary, Fla., rolled in six "solid" birdie putts, including one 39-footer, en route to a six-under-par 66 over the 7,038-yard Woodlake Country Club Course.

Right behind at 67 were veterans Babe Hiskey and Peter Oosterhuis and second-year man Frank Conner, once an all-America tennis player at San Antonio's Trinity University who plans to return to tennis if his golf does not improve.

Texan Ben Crenshaw, who would move to No. 1 on the PGA money list by winning the $25,000 first prize, was tied at 69 with several other golfers. Last year's winner, Don January, finished the 18 holes with a 71.

Nearly half the field of 147 posted par-72 or better in almost ideal weather Thursday, but the forecast called for a chance of showers for today's second round.

Shaw, a 13-year professional, was looking for his first victory since 1971 when he won the Disney and Hawaii Opens and finished with $96,220 for his fifth finish in the top 10. This year he is listed 128th on the money list with only $12,462 — $8,200 of which came from his fourth place finish at Los Angeles.

Shaw credited Las Vegas golf pro Jim Chenowth with getting him back on the track with some observation and putting instruction last month.

"I've been working hard at it. Now I'm hitting it solid."

Habs Rip Flyers, 7-1

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Either the Philadelphia Flyers are having trouble getting started this season or the Montreal Canadiens are even more awesome than last year.

"We were blown right out tonight," Flyers captain Bobby Clarke said after Montreal buried Philadelphia 7-1 Thursday night in the only National Hockey League game of the day. "(Canadien goalie Ken) Dryden did the job."

The win gave the defending Stanley Cup champions a 4-1 record, while the puzzling Flyers, who fell to Montreal in four straight games in the Cup finals last season, dropped to 1-3.

Yet according to Dryden, it was Montreal that had trouble getting started Thursday night.

Fans mob Chris Chambliss

Fans Erupt After Big Hit

NEW YORK (UPI) — They trampolined on the home plate screen, gouged out huge chunks of stadium turf and made off with anything that could fit through a subway turnstile.

Yankee fans were not about to take their first American League championship in 12 years quietly.

Chris Chambliss' pennantwinning home run was still rattling around the right field stands Thursday night when thousands of the Yankee faithful swarmed out on the field screaming "We're No. 1" and "Bring on the (Cincinnati) Reds."

Chambliss had to make like Larry Csonka to run out his homer, which gave the Yankees a 7-6 win over the Kansas City Royals in the fifth and deciding game of their playoff series.

The burly first baseman barely managed a swipe at second base which was already in the hands of a young fan. Third base was long gone and it is a matter of dispute whether Chambliss ever touched home plate.

No serious injuries were reported in the boisterous postgame celebration, but the fans managed to take plenty of chunks of turf out of George Steinbrenner's new ballfield for souvenirs.

"We've waited 12 years for this," said Jim Zanca, 29, of New York, his piece of outfield grass tucked under his arm. Asked what he planned to do with the turf, he said, "Plant it. What else?"

The fans also tore down the batting cage behind the left center field fence, ripped the padding off the outfield walls and took the wooden on-deck emblems, the pitching rubber and the mound.

"I'm afraid to look at the field," said one of the Yankee Stadium groundskeepers. "We may be here until next Tuesday night trying to get the grass back on it."

A couple of fans bounced around on the home plate screen, but they had to take second place in acrobatics to the two youths who climbed up the right field foul pole during the game.

Underneath the stadium, several newsmen had to punch their way through overenthusiastic fans who tore at their clothes in an effort to secure dressing room credentials. Two such fans were sent sprawling just in front of the Yankee clubbhouse and there were some anxious moments when a surging crowd began to fall over them.

Some 50 policemen stationed out on the field patiently allowed the fans, part of the record crowd of 56,821, to let off steam while trying to channel them back into the stands.

"I feel somewhat like the little Dutch boy holding back the flood," said one officer who was part of a barrier line keeping a tide of young fans from overflowing into the Yankee dugout.

But he added, "They deserve it. It's been a long stretch. Now if we can only beat the Reds in the World Series,"

During the game, the fans kept the groundskeepers busy throwing streamers and confetti onto the field. When the Royals tied the Yankees 6-6 in the eighth inning, some bottles were thrown, prompting an announcement by the Yankee management for the fans to restrain themselves.

Police said six officers were slightly injured in the postgame commotion and reported eight arrests for the night on charges of larceny, disorderly conduct and jostling.

Police also said 78 summonses were handed out for ticket scalping and 110 summonses for illegal peddling.

PUBLIC NOTICE

STATE OF NEW YORK
PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION
ALBANY

CASE 27072–Proceeding on motion of the Commission as to proposed tariff revisions for Special Call-In Service–for radio broadcasters and others–filed by New York Telephone Company.

September 28, 1976

NOTICE is hereby given that a prehearing conference will be held in the above matter before Administrative Law Judge Harold L. Colbeth, in Hearing Room No. 2, 24th Floor, Two World Trade Center, New York City, on Tuesday, October 26, 1976, beginning at 10 a.m. and continuing from day to day thereafter as necessary.

Subjects to be considered at this conference will include: (1) taking the appearances of parties who wish to participate in the proceeding, (2) establishing a schedule of hearing dates for the receipt of testimony, cross-examination and unsworn oral statements, (3) the grouping and representation of parties having similar interests, (4) arrangements for stipulations, agreements and rulings concerning procedures and issues, and (5) other matters that may be pertinent to this proceeding.

Public hearing in this proceeding was ordered by the Public Service Commission under its authority to examine and conduct investigations of telephone service and rates as set forth in Sections 5, 91, 92, 94, 96, 97 and 98 of the Public Service Law. The Commission acted following the filing of proposed tariff revisions by New York Telephone Company, which revisions would provide for the introduction of Special Call-In Service in New York City. Such service would be available to those customers, primarily radio broadcasters, whose contests or promotional activities generate mass calling by the public to a particular telephone number.

Under the proposal of New York Telephone Company such a call which is not answered after a specified interval would be routed to automatic answering equipment which would terminate the call with a recorded message from the broadcaster. The caller would be charged with a completed call and the broadcaster would pay for the necessary lines and the recording equipment. Pending its decision, the Commission has suspended the proposed tariff revisions through January 12, 1977.

Inquiries and comments relative to this proceeding may be addressed to the undersigned at Empire State Plaza, Albany, New York 12223.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, OCT. 16

Your Birthday Today: This year serves to firm up your basic enterprises into successful systematic forms. You won't be satisfied for long, and will use the last few months for preparations to launch yourself into ambitious expansions or an untried field. Relationships vary according to the depth of your commitment. Today's natives plan and work privately, but their output attracts public attention eventually. Those born this year will be perennial idealists; will perpetually strive to improve their local and larger environment.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Take it easy. Who said you must live up to friends' expectations? Travel runs into snags: simplify it. Sports lighten your mood.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Nothing succeeds without hard work. Persist in spite of neglect or criticism from the very people who should be ready, willing and able to help you.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Pay attention to the niceties of civilized life to gain more freedom and higher rewards. Seek contacts with VIPs. The experience is informative and enjoyable.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Ventures prosper with correct use of new tools, skills, connections. Be meticulous, on the finicky side. Be very choosy about the company you keep.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Offer praise where it's deserved, expect nothing in return. Business planning is strongly favored. Include proven friends for the long pull.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Seize opportunities to see people who normally are beyond your reach. Ask for their opinion on your enterprises. A surprise cheers up home life.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): "Luck" arises from being in the right place at the right time in a constructive frame of mind. Accept weekend work to supplement regular income.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Fresh ventures begin through friends who are a bit removed from your regular orbit. Be wary of entrusting comparative strangers with responsibility.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Distant incidents prove beneficial in a roundabout way. Take care of yourself and your people first. Technical advice comes in handy.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Move to get things done, settle accounts later. Avoid overorganization. Friends' special skills may contribute to success.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Neighborhood affairs deserve your leadership. Be generous with a favorite charity. Keep clear records for accounting or tax purposes.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): New ideas seem impractical at first glance, but make note for review during the business week. Find or give a lively party tonight.

TEEN FORUM

By JEAN ADAMS, Ph.D.

KISSING: (Q.) I have a complaint — just one complaint. A lot of the time you publish the same kinds of questions that you have already published — like ages of dating.

Three times I sent you letters — about three different subjects — that were very different. And you did not print them.

Here's one again: I just regularly kissed Jim a couple of weeks ago. I'm 13 and he's 14. Do you think we're too young? We've known each other a long time and really, truly love each other!

Also, will it do any damage to me? I hope you know what I mean by "damage." — Wondering in Pennsylvania.

(A.) I answer the questions I get. Most of them are about the same subjects because these are the subjects that teens are interested in. This interest is intense and continuing.

Kissing is one of these subjects. Just a few days ago, I answered a kissing question almost exactly like yours.

No, I don't think plain lip-kissing (not French) at 13 or 14 does any real damage. But those who do kiss at this age should do it out of care, real care, for each other, and not just to see what it's like or just because they hear others are doing it.

If you and Jim truly like each other, want to kiss and do not overdo it, then neither of you will be hurt by it.

HOW?: (Q.) I like Brenda very much but she doesn't know it. I'm NOT shy, but I just don't know how to tell her. Maybe you can help me. My name is Roger. Brenda and I are both 14. — Help Needed in Indiana.

(A.) I am sure Brenda knows more than you think she knows. Your attention to her is probably already indicating to her that you like her.

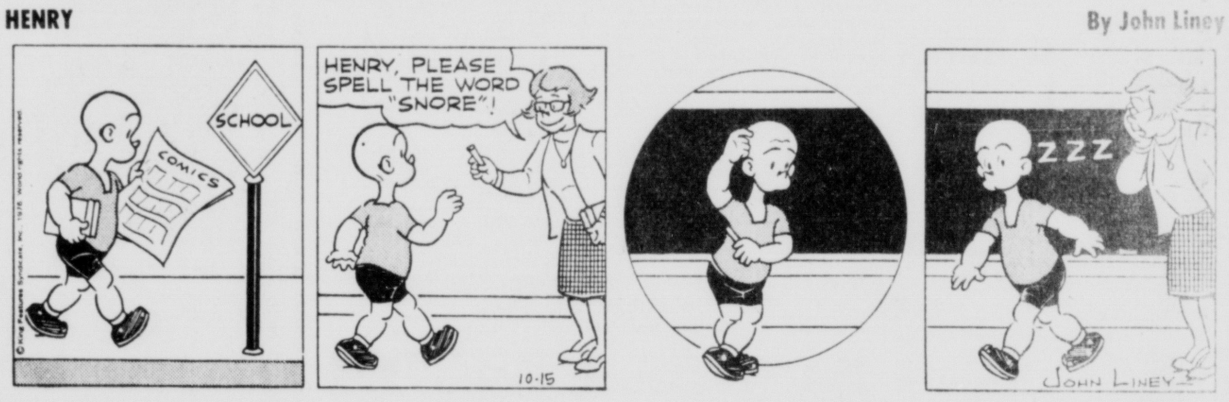

Words are important, but attention and interest speak louder — especially at 14, when it is often hard to say "I like you" or "I love you."

(Have a problem? Write to Dr. Jean Adams, care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001. Every letter is read, but because of the great number received, Dr. Adams cannot personal replies.) . .

STINGY PLAYER LOSES CONTRACT

Opening lead — ♠ K

Since North had bid both minor suits and then raised hearts, he was surely short in spades. A trump opening lead, although unattractive, would have defeated the contract.

West actually opened the king of spades and then shifted to a club. This gave South the contract, but he found a way to give it back.

Declarer won the club in dummy, got to his hand with the ace of diamonds, and ruffed a spade in dummy. Then he looked for a way to get back to his hand so that he could ruff his last spade in dummy.

ONLY WAY

The only way was to cash the second high club and ruff a club in the South hand. When South stingily ruffed with the jack of hearts, West overruffed and returned a trump. South eventually had to give up a second spade trick and a diamond. Down one.

South should make the contract by ruffing the third club with the ace of trumps. That would shut West out. South would then ruff his last spade in dummy. He would lose one spade, one trump and one diamond, but the game and rubber would be safe.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold: ♠7 ♡83 ◇Q10852 ♣AK973. What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass. Change one of the low red cards to the king of its suit, and you'd have a sound opening bid. Don't strain too hard to open the bidding when your long suits are diamonds and clubs.

Ford Snipes, Carter Quips, Campaign Plods On

By UPI

President Ford, in a news conference ridiculed by Jimmy Carter, asserted that questions about his personal integrity have now been buried and that he and the Democratic nominee can proceed to "elevate the presidential campaign" by discussing issues.

Ford made the comment at the start of a 30-minute nationally televised news conference, in which he accused Carter of committing slander and making misrepresentations.

Carter, addressing a Liberal Party dinner in New York City, said he had criticized Ford for not having a full-scale news conference since Feb. 19 but now "I'll have to be critical of him for having a press conference and not answering any questions."

"It's remarkable," Carter said. "He thought he'd have a debate without my being there. I don't know how I did in the first two debates but I think I did pretty well in the press conference tonight."

Ford told reporters he was pleased at being given a "clean bill of health" by Watergate Special Prosecutor Charles Ruff, who earlier in the day reported that Ford had not violated the law in his use of campaign funds in his congressional elections.

The President said he hoped the announcement would "elevate the presidential campaign to a level befitting the American people." He said he and Carter now should be able to discuss other issues "seriously and honestly."

He said Carter made "14 misrepresentations or inaccurate statements" in their second debate, and added that he felt "very strongly" about Carter's comments that the nation wasn't as strong as it once had been, had attempted a Vietnam-style venture in Angola and had lost respect.

"I don't approve of any candidate for president slandering the name of the United States," Ford said.

Sen. Robert Dole, Republican vice presidential nominee, said Carter should apologize to Ford as a result of the prosecutor's announcement.

Carter said he had "no reason to dispute" the prosecutor's findings. But he said he wouldn't apologize for his earlier statements demanding that Ford "tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth about his personal finances."

"I never used his violating or not violating the law as a campaign issue," Carter said. "I just said he ought to hold a press conference to explain these things rather than hide in the White House."

At the New York dinner, Carter proposed an agreement with the Soviet Union for a "quick freeze" and eventual mutual reduction in atomic weapons. He said the program should be coupled with a plan to halt the spread of nuclear weapons to countries that don't have them now.

Dole and Sen. Walter Mondale, his Democratic opponent, will confront each other tonight in the campaign's vice presidential debate in Houston. It will be nationally televised, starting at 9:30 p.m. EDT.

3 States Still Ban Flu Shots

By UPI

The U.S. swine flu immunization program, given a clean bill of health by the government's top physician, was resumed today by all but three states.

Dr. Theodore Cooper, assistant secretary for Health, Education and Welfare, in Washington, cleared the vaccine of any responsibility in the deaths of 14 persons — including the initial Pittsburgh trio — which the CDC said died within 48 hours of receiving doses.

Cooper also stated there was nothing wrong with the way the vaccinations were administered to the deceased.

However, "There's no question at the present time that the program is adversely affected," he said.

President Ford and members of the First Family were inoculated at the White House to back claims that the administration's $135 million nationwide prevention plan was safe for Americans.

Only Wisconsin, Michigan and Maine continued their ban on the shots.

Alaska, New Mexico, Texas, Vermont, Illinois, Virginia, Louisiana and Allegheny County, Pa. (Pittsburgh) health authorities have announced resumptions of immunizations.

The states had banned flu shots following the deaths of three persons Monday in Pittsburgh, who were vaccinated at the same neighborhood clinic at the same time and then died a few hours later.

"Once we determined that, with the possible exception of Pittsburgh, all of the deaths were due to natural causes unrelated to the influenza immunization we felt we could proceed with our program as planned," said New Mexico state epidemiologist Dr. Jonathan Mann.

Dr. Fratus Duff, commissioner of the Texas Department of Health Resources, said: "I thought it was prudent to stop the program because of the almost hysteria existing because of the deaths. But people are going to die, particularly in that age group. They have their facts straight now."

The federal Center for Disease Control in Atlanta planned to add today to its official list of 14 persons it has confirmed died within two days following flu shots.

The listing only means the person died following a flu shot, not that the flu shot has been implicated in the death. On the contrary, the CDC said many of the deaths already have been traced to other causes.
